Summary

- Main entry: Stokes, Anson Phelps, 1838-1913
- Title: Stokes family genealogical research papers, 1709-1960 (bulk 1870-1940)
- Size: 7 linear feet (14 boxes)
- Source: Gift of the New York Genealogical and Biographical Society, 2008
- Abstract: The Stokes Family Genealogical Research Papers consist of genealogical research materials compiled and collected by Anson Phelps Stokes, author of the Stokes Records (1910), and his daughter, Helen Phelps Stokes on the Phelps and Stokes families, who were primarily bankers and merchants in New England and New York in the nineteenth and twentieth centuries. Materials in the collection include correspondence, manuscripts of genealogical works, family trees, genealogical pamphlets, notes, numerous copies and a small number of original family documents. Highlights include correspondence (1843-1847) of Anson Greene Phelps and his daughters, Caroline Phelps Stokes and Elizabeth Phelps James and an 1867 safe conduct for James Stokes signed by William H. Seward.
- Access: Apply in the Special Collections Office for admission to the Manuscripts and Archives Division.

Biographical note

Anson Greene Phelps (1781-1853) was a New York merchant, a member of the New York Young Men's Bible Society, a descendant of Massachusetts Bay Colony Governor Thomas Dudley and the founder of the Phelps, Dodge & Co. import-export business. He took three sons-in-law into the business, William Earl Dodge (the son of Phelps' business partner, David Low Dodge), Daniel James, and James Stokes (the son of British-born merchant Thomas Stokes, who was also in business with Phelps). Although the sons-in-law became the senior partners in the firm after Phelps' death in 1853, friction between the personalities of William Dodge and James Stokes eventually led Stokes and his sons to withdraw from the business in 1875.

James and Caroline Phelps Stokes had ten children; the eldest was Anson Greene Phelps Stokes (1838-1913), who reinforced the connection to the Phelps family by marrying Helen Louisa Phelps, daughter of banker Isaac Newton Phelps. In addition to his genealogical works, most notably the Stokes Records (1910), Anson Phelps Stokes was the author of many published works on other subjects, including a brief travel memoir, Cruising in the Caribbean with a Camera (published in 1903 by Dodd, Mead), and works on bi-metallism and money, Joint-Metallism, (published in 1895/6, G.P. Putnam's sons) and Dangers of the Proposed National Paper-Money Trust (published in 1898, by the Knickerbocker Press.) Anson and Helen Stokes had nine children including a daughter, Helen Phelps Stokes, who continued her father's genealogical research after his death; and most notably Isaac Newton Phelps Stokes (1867-1944), architect, housing reformer, and author of The Iconography of Manhattan Island, 1498-1909.

Scope and content note

This collection consists of genealogical research materials on the Phelps and Stokes families, who were primarily New England and New York bankers and merchants, compiled and collected by Anson Phelps Stokes and his daughter, Helen Phelps Stokes, focusing on the distant English ancestors of the families.

Materials in this collection consist of correspondence with professional researchers and Stokes family members, numerical files (profiles on family members, arranged by number, mostly from the sixteen, seventeenth and eighteenth century, with a few later nineteenth century family member profiles, some of which are accompanied by original documents). Background research materials include copies and transcripts of documents such as court records, indenture documents, patent rolls, estate inventories, newspaper articles, bible records and wills, and genealogical writings and family trees. Manuscripts for genealogical works by Anson Phelps Stokes and Helen Phelps Stokes include the Stokes Records (1910), by Anson Phelps Stokes as well as other writings on the family by Helen Phelps Stokes, many of which have corresponding family trees. Original documents in the collection date back to 1709 and correspondence of William E. D. Stokes, who inherited the research materials are from as late as 1960, but the bulk of the collection, created by Anson Phelps Stokes and Helen Phelps Stokes dates from 1870-1940.

Arrangement note

The Stokes Family Genealogical Research Papers are organized in the following series:

- Series I: Correspondence, 1873-1940
- Series II: Numerical Files, 1824-1911
- Series III: Resource Materials, 1709-1958
- Series IV: Manuscripts, 1771-1960

Series descriptions and container list

Series I: Correspondence, 1873-1940

This series consists of correspondence, 1873-1940, of Anson Phelps Stokes and, to a lesser extent, Helen Phelps Stokes concerning research on their family history. Their correspondents include other family members and professional researchers such as Ruth T. Sperry and Lothrop Worthington.

Series IV: Manuscripts, 1771-1960

This series contains manuscripts of genealogical works by Anson Phelps Stokes and Helen Phelps Stokes. These works include full length histories, mostly drafts of the Stokes Records, by Anson Phelps Stokes, published in 1910, and its unpublished continuations and family trees made by Helen Phelps Stokes to accompany these works. Also included are original documents and copies of documents and photographs collected as background research for specific volumes and writings. This series also includes manuscripts for Notes on the Norman-English Peck Families by Edwin Roberts Peck.
