Title:	Emergency Committee In Aid of Displaced Foreign Scholars Records, 1927-1949 (bulk 1933-1945)
Size:	88.5 linear feet (212 boxes)
Source:	Gift of the Emergency Committee in Aid of Displaced Foreign Scholars, 1946
Abstract:	The Emergency Committee in Aid of Displaced Foreign Scholars was formed in New York City in 1933 by American academicians for the purpose of employing refugee German scholars in American institutions. Many of these refugee scholars were Jews displaced by the National Socialist government. The collection consists chiefly of grant files on refugee scholars who applied for aid from the Committee. The records also include correspondence with other refugee and philanthropic organizations and with the educational institutions which accepted refugee scholars.
Access:	Apply in the Special Collections Office for admission to the Manuscripts and Archives Division.
Preferred citation:	Emergency Committee In Aid of Displaced Foreign Scholars Records, Manuscripts and Archives Division, The New York Public Library.
Special formats	Photographs.

Provenance note

The papers of the Emergency Committee in Aid of Displaced Foreign Scholars (1933-1945) came to The New York Public Library in June 1946 as a gift by virtue of a resolution adopted at the final meeting of the Committee. The resolution sealed the records for a twenty-five year period.

The records of the Rockefeller Institute consist of correspondence of Dr. P.A. Levine with displaced physicians, 1933-1940.

The American Committee for Guidance of Professional Personnel enabled displaced lawyers to undergo retraining courses in law schools. Professor Carl J. Friedrich served as acting chairman and Professor David Riesman served as Secretary of the Selection Committee. These files contain correspondence with the refugee lawyers, with law schools and foundations, committee correspondence and reports, publicity material and financial records.

Historical note

The Emergency Committee in Aid of Displaced Foreign Scholars was formed in New York City in 1933 for the purpose of employing refugee German scholars in American institutions. Many of the refugee scholars were Jews displaced by the National Socialist government. The Committee came into existence through the efforts of a small group of academics and philanthropists in New York City. In May of 1933, Alfred E. Cohn, Bernard Flexner, and Fred M. Stein contacted Stephen Duggan, the director of the Institute of International Education, to discuss the possibility of creating an organization to assist German scholars fleeing to the United States. These four men formed the organizing committee that became the Emergency Committee in Aid of Displaced German Scholars. Felix Warburg and Alan Gregg served as advisors to the organizers and helped gain support from other refugee and philanthropic organizations. Livingston Farrand became Chairman of the Committee; Stephen Duggan became its Secretary, and after the death of Farrand, its Chairman; and Fred M. Stein became its Treasurer. Edward R. Murrow served as Assistant Secretary until 1935, followed by John H. Whyte (1935-1937), Betty Drury (1937-1944) and finally, by Francis Fenton Park (1945). Professor Nelson P. Meade and Professor L.C. Dunn were added to Messrs. Farrand, Stein and Duggan to form an Executive Committee.

The Committee was in operation for twelve years and served to raise funds on behalf of refugee scholars. Relief was not made directly to the scholars, rather, funds were made available through a program of grants-in-aid to colleges, universities, and other institutions and later through fellowships that served mainly artists and writers. These funds were provided mainly through foundations, although many individuals did make significant contributions.

In 1938, as Nazi aggression spread throughout Europe, the Committee broadened the scope of its mission to include refugee scholars from all countries overrun by the Nazi armies. The Committee changed its name to the Emergency Committee in Aid of Displaced Foreign Scholars, in order to reflect this new mission.

Over the course of twelve years, the Committee provided grants for 335 scholars and assisted many others through references to other assistance organizations. The Committee disbanded in 1945.

Scope and content note

The records of the Emergency Committee in Aid of Displaced Foreign Scholars include documentation on both the structure and activities of the Committee and the individuals who successfully or unsuccessfully sought aid. In all, some 6,000 displaced scholars and professional persons from Europe appealed to the Committee. Of that number 335 were granted assistance through the Committee. The correspondence with and about these refugee scholars accounts for the largest and most important portion of the collection.

Supplementing the grant files are correspondence files with educational and research institutions. This correspondence gives the story from the point of view of the American academy and the interest in hiring individual scholars as well as attitudes toward the European influence on higher education. Every major educational institution in the United States is represented in these files.

The Emergency Committee was by no means the only one devoted to the assistance of refugee scholars. The record of cooperation both with organizations already in existence and those organized for the specific purpose of assisting in the placement of refugees in the particular professions can be found in the correspondence with other refugee organizations.

Turning to the internal organization of the Committee, the most important files are the correspondence and papers generated by the Executive Committee which served to raise funds and select scholars to be aided. In addition, after 1940 the Committee was selected to serve as the central exchange for information and advice upon the whole problem of displaced foreign scholar. The minutes and annual reports of the Committee along with the financial reports of the disposition of funds and the contributions received complete the record.

While the majority of the collection is in English, some materials in German, French, Spanish, shorthand, and other languages are present. A member of the Committee, most likely Betty Drury, provided English translations of some of the foreign language correspondence.

Series I. Grant files, 1927-1949

133 boxes

The Grant files series includes materials relating to scholars who received aid from the Emergency Committee and refugees, scholars, and others who applied for aid but did not receive it. The series is divided into two subseries according to whether or not assistance was granted. In addition to correspondence, both groups of files include curriculum vitae, recommendations from colleagues, reports of personal interviews, evaluations of teaching abilities and personality by American academic officials, and records of financial assistance granted. In some cases, bibliographies, reprints of scholars' works, and photographs are present.

I.A. Grantees, 1933-1946

36 boxes

The Grantees files contain correspondence with and regarding scholars who were aided by the Emergency Committee. Also included are correspondence with referees, university officials, refugee and welfare organizations, resumes, outlines of projects, photographs, clippings, publications by scholars, and interoffice correspondence and notes regarding scholars.

The majority of the scholars received grants-in-aid that provided them a position at an institution of higher learning, however, 47 scholars received fellowships through a program created by the Julius Rosenwald Fund. The Fund provided a grant to the Emergency Committee to aid refugees through fellowships intended for those outside the teaching profession. The Rosenwald Fellows were generally younger than the other grantees of the Committee and were mainly artists and writers. The names of the Fellows have been identified in the list of Grantees.

The fields of study represented by the scholars in this series include history, language and literature, philosophy, economics, law, sociology, biology, mathematics, and physics.

I.B. Non-Grantees, 1927-1945

97 boxes

The Non-Grantees files include correspondence, resumes, clippings, photographs, publications, lists, and interoffice correspondence and notes regarding refugees who applied to the Emergency Committee but did not receive aid, as well as refugees who were assisted by other organizations or whose situation was somehow brought to the attention of the Committee. Not all of the files concern refugees or scholars (according to the strict definition of the Committee) and not all of these people applied to the Committee for assistance. Some wrote seeking information about the work of the Committee or other organizations.

There is material regarding scholars who were awarded aid from the Committee, but were unable to accept for reasons of health. or who were unable to leave Europe. Some folders contain only a clipping regarding the fate of a scholar in Europe or an opening at an American institution that could be filled by a refugee scholar, while others contain years of correspondence with a particular individual.

Series II. Educational and research institutions, 1932-1945

25 boxes

The Educational and research institutions series includes correspondence with colleges, universities, research institutions, museums, and other institutions of higher learning, most of which received grants through the Emergency Committee to employ refugee scholars. The correspondence concerns the placement and funding of scholars, as well as the awarding and extension of grants and fellowships.

The files include correspondence with Franz Boas, Joseph Perkins Chamberlain, Alvin Johnson, Harry Miller Lydenberg, and Harlow Shapley and correspondence regarding the University in Exile at the New School for Social Research.

In this series the filing system of the Emergency Committee has been maintained. Files for particular institutions are arranged by the most descriptive term. State universities are listed with the name of the state first, for example, University of California is listed as California, University of. The same protocol has been followed for private institutions with names in a similar format, e.g. College of Jewish Studies is filed as Jewish Studies, College of.

Series III. Refugee organizations, 1933-1945

12 boxes

The Refugee organizations series includes correspondence with organizations that provided aid to refugees. Included are organizations specifically founded to aid refugees, organizations whose main mission may not have been to provide refugee aid, but which provided assistance to the Emergency Committee or formed committees to investigate refugee issues. Also present are lists and biographical data on refugees and reports and publications of the organizations.

Series V. General correspondence, 1930, 1933-1945

12 boxes

The General correspondence series includes correspondence with and regarding people interested in the work of the Emergency Committee, individuals writing for news of a relative or friend, learned societies, individuals and corporations interested in employing or otherwise aiding refugees, and correspondence regarding references for scholars. Also included is correspondence with Elijah William Bagster-Collins and Walter M. Kotschnig, representatives of the Committee. Bagster-Collins represented the Committee in Europe between 1933-1935 with the aim of developing a relationship between the Committee and the Academic Assistance Council in order to receive information regarding displaced scholars and to assist them in finding positions in the United States, if they so wished. Kotschnig traveled to the American Middle West to visit institutions and discover any additional needs that might be served by the Committee.

Correspondents include Paul Baerwald, Salo Wittmayer Baron, Norman De Mattos Bentwich, Franz Boas, Joseph Perkins Chamberlain, Carl J. Friedrich, Felix Frankfurter, Alvin Johnson, Edward R. Murrow, and Oswald Veblen.

Series VII. Subcommittees, 1934-1945

3.5 boxes

The Subcommittees series includes correspondence, minutes, and notes concerning the subcommittees created by the Executive Committee in order to address specific issues in detail. Issues included applications received by the Committee, the liquidation of the Committee at the end of the war, whether the Committee should aid Japanese scholars, the writing of annual reports, the history of the Committee, and other publicity materials, and the possibility of providing pensions for older scholars after the dissolution of the Committee.

VII.A. Advisory subcommittee, 1940-1942

2 folders

The Advisory subcommittee consisted of representatives from learned societies enlisted by the Emergency Committee to help shape its policies with regard to refugee scholars. The subcommittee was comprised of scholars from various fields of learning for the purpose of advising the best ways of using the scholars to advantage. The subcommittee met rarely and most business was conducted via correspondence with members who were able to assist with specific issues raised in the placement of refugee scholars.

198	3	VII.E. Extended program subcommittee, 1940-1941 1 folder The Extended program subcommittee of the Emergency Committee was created to address the increasing numbers of refugees fleeing Europe in 1939 and 1940. At a meeting of the Association of American Universities, James B. Conant of Harvard University presented a plan intended to accomplish what the Emergency Committee was already doing, but on a larger scale and with the hope of permanently placing refugee scholars.
198	4	VII.F. History subcommittee, 1944 1 folder The History subcommittee subseries contains correspondence regarding the creation of a subcommittee to identify a scholar to write the history of the Emergency Committee. The task fell to Executive Committee members Stephen Duggan and Betty Drury, who wrote The Rescue of Science and Learning . Material regarding their book can be found in the Publicity subseries in the Internal office records series.
