Connections 2010
A guide for formerly incarcerated people to information sources in New York City and

The Job Search

edited by Nick Higgins and Luis Torres
About This Directory

The purpose of Connections is to help match pre-release and recently released prisoners with helpful resources available to them in New York City.

Every agency listed in Connections has been personally contacted in order to provide our readers current and relevant information. Please be advised that this information may change.

Connections contains only a selective listing of resources in New York City. By reading this guide, we hope you are encouraged to explore further and to become aware of possibilities you might otherwise have overlooked. For example, few inmates we speak with are aware that their public library offers help in finding a job, preparing for the GED or setting up an e-mail account. These services are all provided free of charge by specially trained library staff. Further, all agencies listed in Connections offer their services free to residents of any of the five boroughs, unless otherwise noted.

Connections includes many online (Internet) resources. You can access the Internet at any public library in the five boroughs for free. Several public libraries offer free classes on computer and Internet use (in English and Spanish), as well as classes on Job Searching and Health Information online.

The Job Search section of this guide helps formerly incarcerated people prepare for the world of work. It discusses resume writing, interviewing skills, employer discrimination, disclosing convictions on job applications and many other useful topics.

Connections can be found online at www.nypl.org/branch/services/connections

The 2005–2006 Spanish language edition, Conexiones, is online at www.nypl.org/branch/services/conexiones

Many people have written asking for publications similar to Connections that cover areas of New York State outside of New York City. We know of seven other guides at this time:
Acknowledgments

Connections and The Job Search was written by Stephan Likosky, former Correctional Services Librarian (Retired) for The New York Public Library. It was updated by Nick Higgins, current Correctional Services Librarian, Luis Torres, Information Assistant, and the 2010 update team: Elena Carasca, Cathy Carr, Natasha Drax, Magally Gomila, Allen Hoffman and Lynn Strudler. The design and typography was created by Kara Van Woerden. Special thanks also to Tina Hoerenz (Graphics Office) and the Library’s Publications Office for their fine work in producing the booklet. Alejandrina Manso, Mariah Willis and Ivette Gonzalez were responsible for its distribution.

Funding for Connections and The Job Search was derived from grants to serve City/County and State Correctional Facilities from the New York State Education Department, Division of Library Development. The cover art of Connections is by Guillermo Escudero. Mr. Escudero has dedicated much of his creative energy to his art, and has volunteered his help to other artists in exhibiting their work in the branches of The New York Public Library. Mr. Escudero has also served as the Technical Director of the Thalia Spanish Theater in Queens, where he designed lights and constructed sets for the productions and plays. He currently resides in Arizona.

“Through my art, I am able to express my own world of fantasy and feelings. In this particular painting, the flower symbolizes life and its energy, the people like plants emerging and dancing to the rhythm of nature, in complete harmony.”

The illustration work in The Job Search was drawn by Drew Hodges, a graduate of the School of Visual Arts.

We would like to thank all of the many individuals who have written to us in response to Connections 2009. Their comments were very encouraging and their corrections useful, and many of the suggestions we received from them have been incorporated into the present edition. We would also be interested in hearing your reactions to Connections 2010 and The Job Search. Write to: Correctional Library Services, The New York Public Library, 455 Fifth Avenue, New York, NY 10016. If you would like additional copies of the booklet, please write to this address.
Introduction

From a world where all decisions big and small are made for you, to a world where every day offers you hundreds of different choices …

From the constant clanging of metal doors opening and shutting, keys in locks, and bells, to the sudden quiet of your own private space …

From institutional drab to a world of Technicolor …

From incarceration to freedom.

The first few weeks are the hardest — on this all formerly incarcerated people agree. The dreams and plans you’ve nourished inside don’t quite match the realities with which you are confronted. There are questions, anxieties: Where can I get a decent job? What’ll it be like living with my spouse again after so long an absence? Will my kids accept me? How easily will I be able to meet new people? Where can I go just to be left alone and sort things out? Am I strong enough to avoid being tempted by old destructive patterns?

Answers aren’t easy …

One piece of advice, however, suggested by many formerly incarcerated people, never fails: proceed slowly. Take things step by step. First plan your priorities, devise a strategy, and then proceed. Don’t try to accomplish everything at once.

Take trying to find a place to stay, for example, or getting a job. These are top priorities for most formerly incarcerated people. Yet, given today’s rental and job markets, finding your own place, or a challenging and well-paying job, may not be easy. Maybe the first job you’re offered won’t be the one you’ve had in mind, but you’ll decide to take it anyway. It will help pay the rent and give you time to get established and readjust on a personal level. Later, when you’re “settled in” with family and friends and have made some good contacts, that will be the time to concentrate on hunting for a better position.

The return back to society is not easy for most formerly incarcerated people, and it may require lots of patience, endurance, and self-discipline. It may take having to make numerous phone calls, for example, and spending an entire day at various agencies just to get to the person you need. But don’t be discouraged. There are shortcuts.
Most important, try to get the name of a person you can contact at the agency from a group that can refer you. Referral is a service that many groups offer. You should take advantage of it, because with the enormous amount of information and the great number of groups out there, it takes real skill for someone to match your needs with the appropriate service. And when a referral person calls an agency in advance to arrange an interview for you with a contact person, lots of time and unnecessary frustration are spared.

Also, since many agencies require at least an identification card, a birth certificate, and sometimes a Social Security card, get these documents in order before you are released.

Some people planning their release will be interested in writing to some of the organizations in Connections for more information and assistance. Two tips to keep in mind when writing letters to a non-profit organization or community group: tailor your request to your audience, and be concise. Instead of asking for “any information you can provide”, describe what type of document, program or piece of information might meet your needs. And rather than asking for information on a long list of topics, ask the group to assist you with concerns they will recognize within their area of specialization. The more concise your letter, the easier it is for your recipient to reply — and the further you roam, the more likely the reader is going to file it in the “Do Later” box.

What about finding personal support when you get out? Some people immediately upon release prefer to spend their first period of time alone. Others are anxious to seek out family and friends. Almost all ex-prisoners, however, express the importance of having a network of support — one person, or a group of people, who can offer understanding and moral encouragement. Sometimes a counselor can be of help, as can getting in touch with a formerly incarcerated people’s organization and talking with a person who’s been through it all, just like you, and knows how to listen and help you sort out feelings.

There will be difficulties, but remember, you are far more in control of your life now than you were before. So, take advantage. New York offers you a vast multitude of possibilities — if you take the challenge and plan carefully. There are lots of good people out there, people who can help you. We hope that this directory provides an important step toward reaching them.

The descent to hell is easy
The gates stand open day and night
But to reclimb the slope
And escape to the upper air
This is labor.

Organizations for Formerly Incarcerated People

Adjustment back to the community is often a difficult process. Fortunately, various groups exist to make that transition a little bit easier. Some of the organizations, such as The Fortune Society, are operated largely by formerly incarcerated people and provide a wide range of important services. Other groups focus on one area: job assistance, counseling, helping people living with HIV/AIDS. In any case, there is usually no substitute for finding a person you can connect with, a person who’s been through it all, and who can lend a sympathetic ear as well as give meaningful advice on problems specific to you as someone returning to the community after incarceration.
THE FORTUNE SOCIETY

29-76 Northern Blvd., Long Island City, NY 11101
Telephone: 212.691.7554
www.fortunesociety.org

The Fortune Society’s mission is to support successful re-entry from prison and promote alternatives to incarceration, thus strengthening the fabric of our communities. We do this by: believing in the power of individuals to change; building lives through service programs shaped by the needs and experiences of our clients; changing minds through education and advocacy that work to rectify unjust and brutal criminal justice policies.

Drawing upon the life experience of Fortune’s formerly incarcerated staff and clients, we offer a holistic, “one-stop” model which includes: alternatives to incarceration, counseling, career development, education, HIV/AIDS-case management, substance abuse treatment, family services scatter-site housing assistance for people with criminal records living with HIV/AIDS and/or substance abuse histories, transitional housing for homeless formerly incarcerated people (by application only) and lifetime aftercare, among other services. The agency recently launched the David Rothenberg Center for Public Policy (DRCPP) to institutionalize and advance its technical assistance, training, policy development, advocacy, and community education initiatives.

In addition, Fortune operates a Drop In Center (Mon.–Thu. 6–6 and Fri. 6–5) at the Long Island City location for people just discharged from Rikers Island, where they can link to needed services (for all releasees, with a focus on those who are HIV positive). Through participation in the R.I.D.E. program (Rikers Island Discharge Enhancement), Fortune assists city-sentenced adults and youth in their transition back to the community through pre-and post-release planning that connects them to Fortune’s services and others in the community.

Fortune publishes a journal called the Fortune News (free to incarcerated people upon request). No legal services are offered. Upon written request, Fortune provides letters of reasonable assurance. Fortune serves people 16 and over. Walk-ins are welcome Mon.–Thu. 8:30–9am. Spanish also spoken. Please call the number listed above for more specific information.

Note: The Fortune Society also provides a limited amount of short and long-term housing by application only at The Fortune Academy for formerly incarcerated people who are homeless within one year of their release. For information, write the Fortune Academy at 630 Riverside Drive, New York NY 10031, Attn: Housing information request.

THE OSBORNE ASSOCIATION

809 Westchester Avenue, Bronx 10455
Telephone: 718.707.2600

175 Remsen Street, Brooklyn 11201
Telephone: 718.637.6560
Fax: 718.381.3528

www.osborneny.org

The Osborne Association assists defendants, formerly incarcerated people on probation and parole, prisoners, and their families. It offers a wide range of educational, vocational, support and health services inside and outside New York courts, prisons and jails, including court advocacy, intensive outpatient substance abuse services, walk-in harm reduction services, intensive HIV/AIDS case management and support for families.

Osborne’s Prevention and Treatment Services provides support groups and low-threshold treatment, in English and Spanish, for those at risk for or coping with substance abuse, HIV/AIDS, hepatitis, tuberculosis, quitting smoking, and other health concerns. Acupuncture and medical testing are available on-site, and help accessing health insurance is provided. The PEETP program trains people living with HIV/AIDS to become peer counselors. Housing placement assistance and independent living skills counseling are provided to those with HIV/AIDS. Individuals wishing to access any of these services will be matched with a caseworker. Osborne’s El Rio program is a community-based addiction recovery and relapse prevention program for individuals mandated to treatment by the courts or community corrections agencies. Call the Bronx site for more information.

Osborne’s Employment & Training Services (formerly called South Forty Corporation) provides vocational services to people with criminal records. This includes assessment, testing, career and educational counseling, job readiness workshops, resume preparation, job search assistance and post-employment support in adjusting to the demands of the workplace and staying employed.

Parenting education classes, children’s visiting centers and the Healthy Marriage Program are offered to help couples and families maintain relationships when a partner or parent is incarcerated. Check with the Transitional Services Center to determine what programs are available in your facility or write the Long Island City address for further information. For information on Osborne’s Family Resource Center in Brooklyn, see the Counseling and Family Services chapter of this directory.

Upon written request, Osborne provides prisoners with letters of reasonable assurance. Spanish also spoken. Osborne’s buildings are accessible to people with disabilities. Call ahead to determine what ID and documents to bring to your first visit. Call Mon.–Fri. 9–5.

LANDING STRIP

c/o The Alternatives to Violence Project
Religious Society of Friends (Quakers)
Telephone: 800.909.8920
www.avpusa.org

A follow-up support group for people who took part in training in prison in the Alternatives to Violence Project. The group meets the first Tuesday and third Wednesday of every month at 6pm at the Friends Meeting House, 15 Rutherford Place in Manhattan. Call for more information and for other groups statewide.
CENTER FOR ALTERNATIVE SENTENCING AND EMPLOYMENT SERVICES (CASES)

346 Broadway, 3rd Floor, Manhattan 10013
Telephone: 212.732.0076
www.cases.org

CASES is an alternative-to-incarceration (ATI) organization providing security and supervision to over 10,000 people each year. Their focus is on re-integration into society, addressing the economic, educational, health and other social factors that underlie repeated criminal behavior. The Day Custody Program is a sentencing alternative for people with multiple misdemeanor convictions. It involves three days of jail in Manhattan, performing community service and receiving services and referrals, with follow-up. The Nathaniel Project is a two-year ATI program for people diagnosed with mental illness who have been sentenced for a felony. This community service alternative sanction includes treatment and supportive services (groceries, shoes, etc) aiding offenders in breaking the cycle of re-incarceration. In the case of technical parole violators who have been re-incarcerated, CASES works to restore parole status and connect individuals to services. Participation in CASES programs is court-mandated: individuals are encouraged to inform their counsel about the alternative sanctions CASES provides. For more information call or visit their website. Accessible to people with disabilities.

ExPONENTS, INC.

151 West 26th Street, Manhattan 10001
Telephone: 212.243.3434
www.exponents.org

Exponents is a non-profit dedicated to improving the lives of individuals affected by drug addiction, HIV/AIDS, and other illnesses, as well as incarceration. ARRIVE is their two-month recovery program offering life skills building, training and support services. The Case Management/Recovery Readiness program matches clients to managers who can assist with benefits: housing, health care and drug treatment needs. Drug Treatment Services is a medically supervised outpatient program for people with chronic illness such as addiction, mental illness, HIV, hepatitis C, diabetes, asthma or hypertension. Individuals in Exponents programs learn techniques for sustainably managing stress and promoting healthy behavior, avoiding relapse, and advocating for themselves. Ex-Offender Conferences take place five times per year. Call first; no referral needed. Can provide letters of reasonable assurance. Contact people: Sam Rivera, ext. 155. Spanish also spoken. Accessible to people with disabilities.

Finding a job can be a big challenge. It often requires lots of hard work, time, and patience. Many people find employment or job counseling to be an important first step. An employment counselor can be expected to help you evaluate your skills and past job experience, fill out sample job application forms, and suggest places where you can look for jobs. An employment counselor will also look over your resume and give you helpful hints on how to handle yourself in job interviews.

Choose a job you love, and you will never have to work a day in your life.

—Confucius
There are many sources for job information. The city's three public library systems feature job centers where current job listings, civil service information, books on how to write resumes and much more can be found. Employment agencies, which may or may not charge fees, offer job placement, as do placement services, which do not charge fees and are usually attached to a city, state, or federal agency, or to a school, college, or job-training program. Union offices are another important source of information, as are community bulletin boards — the one at your local supermarket, for example. Of course, there are the classified ads (help wanted ads) that appear in the daily and Sunday papers and in certain trade periodicals. On the Internet are job search websites both general and very specific, where you can search for jobs by trade and location and submit an application or your resume online. Lastly, don't underestimate the importance of notifying your friends, neighbors, and relatives that you are in the market for a job. A personal connection is often very helpful when an opening occurs.

NOTE: When you leave prison you will, in most cases, be “income eligible” for registration into any number of special programs to help you in job preparation, training, or placement. Take advantage whenever you can.

To obtain or replace a Social Security card, call the U.S. Department of Health and Human Services, Social Security Administration at 800.772.1213 Mon.–Fri. 7am–7pm. TDD/TTY number for the deaf: 800.325.0778. Spanish also spoken. Find a Social Security office by going to their website, www.socialsecurity.gov and entering your ZIP code in the Office Locator.

All NYC public school students between the ages of 14 and 17 must have working papers in order to apply for a job. For information, call the New York City Department of Education at 212.374.6095. Contact your local district or high school superintendent’s office for information on where to obtain your working papers during the summer.

For certain jobs employers require that their employees be “bonded.” This is a type of insurance that protects the employer against any type of dishonest act (larceny, embezzlement, forgery, etc.) that might occur. Because private insurance companies often cannot bond people who have drug or criminal records, the federal government has initiated a Federal Bonding Program that can bond a person for up to $10,000. An employer’s commitment to hire the applicant is required in advance. For information on this government-sponsored program, contact the New York State Department of Labor, Division of Employment Services, at 212.775.3771 Mon.–Fri. 9–5, or visit their website at www.labor.state.ny.us

Computer Literacy

Learning to use the Internet is becoming a necessary step today in coping with the world around us. It helps us to search for a job, find information on just about any topic imaginable, meet new people based on common interests, correspond with family and friends, educate ourselves, become better informed about health issues, find out where and when a movie is playing, reserve a library book, look up business information or government forms, make travel plans and so much more.

For many of us, the idea of learning to use the computer can be scary, especially if we have had little or no exposure, have never learned to type, or see ourselves as mechanically inept. What if something goes wrong? What if I erase something important by mistake? And if I don’t know how to use the Internet in 2010, isn’t it too late for me? But as anyone who has attended an Internet instruction class in a public library in New York City can tell you, there are many people from all walks of life who are learning to use the Internet today, from scratch, as adults. People who were once determined never to use a computer are taking classes because they find they cannot avoid using the Internet to get routine tasks done, and also because they can’t resist what they have heard and read about the Internet: informational web pages, online diaries or “blogs,” video and music sharing systems, social networking, and news and radio from around the world. People coming home from prison can be both curious and nervous when it comes to the Internet, wondering about what they have missed while they were away and worrying about what it will be like catching up.

The best way to get used to the Internet if you are a beginner is by practicing and exploring fun, less urgent topics at first, such as music and sports – then it doesn’t matter if something goes wrong and you have to start over. In the beginning you can always ask for help accessing urgent Internet information or difficult web pages at the reference desk of your local library, just as you might ask for help finding a book. In the meantime, build up your skills “surfing the web,” and enjoy as you learn.

The public libraries of New York City are an important resource for computer training. All three public library systems (The New York Public Library, serving Manhattan, the Bronx, and Staten Island; Brooklyn Public Library; Queens Library) offer free courses. Below you will find a description of the computer training programs offered by the three public library systems. Take advantage. It’s never too late to begin!

THE NEW YORK PUBLIC LIBRARY

The New York Public Library offers a series of free computer training workshops in different branch libraries, under the name “ClickOn @ The Library.” The program’s goal is to extend computer skills throughout the entire community and help bridge the “digital divide” between those with access to computers at home or at school and others. Skill levels vary from beginner to advanced and classes are geared to all age groups, with some courses conducted in Spanish or offering a Spanish translator. Sample classes include: Basic Internet, Introduction to E-mail, Computer Basics, Introduction to Word, Microsoft Office, Health Information,
Job and Career Information, Viruses & Spam, and Buying a Computer. If computers are totally new to you, Mouse Basics and Introduction to Computers are a good way to start. Walk into any branch library for information on schedules, locations, and how to register for the classes, or visit their website for a schedule: www.nypl.org/clickon

BROOKLYN PUBLIC LIBRARY

Visit any branch of the Brooklyn Public Library and ask to see their calendar of upcoming free workshops, which include Computer Basics, Internet Searching and Introduction to Microsoft Word. Every branch of the Brooklyn Public Library has personal computers for public use as well.

Brooklyn’s computer classes are listed on their online calendar: www.brooklynpubliclibrary.org/calendar

They also offer an Internet Tutorial for beginners at www.brooklynpubliclibrary.org/feature/internet_tutorial

QUEENS LIBRARY

The Queens Library has ongoing free instruction in computer skills at its Central Library Cyber Center, 89-11 Merrick Boulevard, Jamaica. Call the Center at 718.990.0799 for a current schedule and registration information. Courses include: Introduction to Excel, Introduction to the Internet, Jobs Online, and Introduction to Word Processing.

Internet Resources

A wealth of useful information for formerly incarcerated job-seekers can be found on the web pages of the National H.I.R.E. Network, established by the Legal Action Center. Though not a job placement service, the goal of this organization is to increase the number and quality of job opportunities available to people with criminal records by changing public policies, employment practices, and public opinion. Visit www.hirenetwork.org and then click on “Resources & Assistance” for information on rap sheets, one’s rights as a formerly incarcerated person when applying for jobs, and a list of helpful agencies by state. Click on “Publications,” scroll down and click on “Working Ahead,” and then on “Chapter Two (Know the Score)” and “Chapter Three (Career Planning)” for access to information on how to restore one’s rights and the Federal Bonding Program, helpful ideas on filling out job applications, creating resumes, conducting effective interviews, and much more. In the “Publications” section of the website you can also find the New York State Occupational Licensing Survey, which provides information about trade licenses and the statutory restrictions people with criminal records can face when applying for them: www.labor.state.ny.us

Search for job openings in private companies as well as publicly-funded organizations. You can also search by Job Code and Military Occupational Code. Information is provided on apprenticeship training and opportunities, and much more: www.nycareerzone.org

The New York State Department of Labor’s CareerZone. Search for jobs online, or click on “Assess Yourself” and answer some questions, and you will be taken to a list of occupations that seem most fitting for you. Included are job descriptions, with the skills and education needed, typical wages, and job outlook. Click on “Resources” and you will find help in writing resumes and cover letters and a valuable guide to employment opportunities and job resources on the Internet: www.bls.gov/oco

The Occupational Outlook Handbook is an authoritative resource for career information. Here you will find descriptions for specific occupations: what workers do on the job, working conditions, the training and education needed, expected earnings, and expected job prospects. This resource is also available as a reference book in most New York City public libraries.

A wide variety of opportunities exist for continuing education in New York City. A range of literacy programs help adults learn to read and improve their reading, usually on a one-to-one basis. Vocational Training programs are designed to prepare students for entry-level positions in a number of different industries. Alternative Degree programs allow a person to work toward a degree without necessarily having to attend classes. There are innumerable college-level programs in which you can enroll, either as a part- or full-time student, and there are organizations that can help you explore what college options are available and the right choice for you.

As with exploring employment opportunities, good counseling can be of great help. Counselors can help you choose an educational program and help make you aware of possible funding sources such as scholarships, grants, and special loans.

Some of these educational programs have age, income or ethnic eligibility requirements, and many will require you to provide some kind of ID or other documents when you register. You should call ahead to any program you’re interested in and ask about these requirements, to save yourself multiple visits. Or, if you have Internet access, check the agency’s website for a description of classes, eligibility and registration information.

Housing Assistance

The Section 8 Housing Assistance Program helps lower-income families obtain a decent place to live. Under this program, the New York City Housing Authority may make monthly payments to a landlord on behalf of an eligible tenant that will constitute the difference between the rent that the tenant can afford to pay for the apartment and the full rent.

Please note that the New York City Housing Authority is no longer accepting Section 8 applications EXCEPT for those in the categories listed below, until further notice:

1. Victims of Domestic Violence
2. Homeless
3. Intimidated Witness
4. Administration for Children’s Services (ACS) Family Unification and Independent Living Programs

You may pick up a Section 8 application from any of the borough offices listed above under “Public Housing.”

The Legal Action Center has published a document, “How to Get Section 8 or Public Housing even with a criminal record: a guide for New York City Housing Authority applicants and their advocates”. Access it online at www.hirenetwork.org/publications.html or call 212.243.1313.

The Department of Housing Preservation and Development (HPD) provides information on available affordable apartments, both rental and sales, through its hotline at 212.863.5610, Spanish 212.863.5620. A taped message lists available apartments by borough, income requirements, where to write for an application, and deadlines for applications. Preference is given to local area residents.

You can also visit the HPD website at www.nyc.gov/html/hpd/home.html and click on “apartment seekers” for a list of frequently asked questions and the HPD’s affordable apartment listing.

Rentals

It is extremely difficult in most areas of New York City today to find decent housing at an affordable rent. It may require a lot of patience and ingenuity to find what you are looking for. Some suggestions include checking the local newspapers and church and community center bulletin boards, monitoring online bulletin boards such as Craigslist (www.newyork.craigslist.org) and notifying friends and people at work that you're looking for an apartment. If you contract for the help of a real estate agent, be prepared to pay a finder's fee of up to 12 to 18% of a year's rent.

Finding a Roommate

Another option in finding living accommodations is sharing an apartment with a roommate. People with apartments wishing to share, as well as people needing apartment space, often advertise in the classified section of the daily papers or on online bulletin boards such as www.craigslist.org. There are also commercial agencies that specialize in matching people with roommates. These agencies charge fees, though many charge only the individuals who own the apartments. For a listing of commercial roommate services, check the Village Voice. Be sure never to sign a contract until you are certain exactly what services you will be given.

Housing Complaints

For complaints about lack of heat and hot water, or a landlord's refusal to make emergency repairs in an apartment or building, call 311 and you will be transferred to the New York City Department of Housing Preservation and Development. Spanish also spoken.

For cases of housing discrimination, see the chapter on Legal Services.

He that is of the opinion money will do everything may well be suspected of doing everything for money.

Financial Assistance

Dealing with government agencies is often a very frustrating experience, requiring both patience and endurance. There is the inevitable waiting line, service is usually impersonal, and it is not uncommon to be shifted from one office or agency to the next in search of simple answers. In recent years many government departments have posted their application forms, eligibility requirements and procedures on the Internet for downloading. If you do not have access to a computer and printer, remember that your neighborhood public library (or organization supporting formerly incarcerated people) may be able to print needed forms and web pages for you or show you how to do so using their computers.
The New York City Human Resources Administration (HRA) administers programs in a number of areas, including:

- Food stamps and food pantry programs
- Child care
- Support for domestic violence survivors
- Home Energy Assistance Program (help with high heating bills)
- Job search and placement services
- Services for people living with HIV and AIDS
- Child support services
- Home care
- Medicaid

Information on applying for benefits is available through the automated telephone line and website. The website includes applications for download and printing, eligibility requirements and FAQs (lists of frequently asked questions about benefits). Spanish, Chinese and Russian are options on the telephone line. No operator is available. Mon.–Fri. 8–5.

Temporary Cash Assistance

Recipients of this benefit fall into four general categories:

1. Families with children under 18 years of age (or 21 if they attend school) without sufficient means of support due to absence or incapacity of one or both parents (ADC, or Aid to Dependent Children);
2. Families with dependent children without sufficient means of support because of unemployed parent (ADC-U, or Aid to Dependent Children with Unemployed Parent);
3. Certain persons in need of financial assistance for such reasons as temporary illness, layoff, or injury (HR, or Home Relief);
4. Persons in need of special services.

You must apply for this in person at a “Job Center.” For a list of Job Centers in your area, visit www.nyc.gov/html/hra/html/directory/job_centers.shtml or call 311 or 1.877.472.8411.

Food Stamps

The Food Stamp Program is a federally funded program designed to enable people with limited income to increase their ability to purchase food. The program provides food stamp benefits through the use of an Electronic Benefit Transfer (EBT) card that can be used in the place of cash. People receiving public assistance can sign up for Food Stamps at the Job Centers described above. Other offices provide just Food Stamp benefits: Addresses for the twenty NYC Food Stamp offices in New York City are found online at: www.nyc.gov/html/hra/downloads/pdf/food_stamp_offices.pdf

An application package can also be mailed: call 877.472.8411 to request. The application can also be printed from the New York State Office of Temporary & Disability Insurance website: www.otda.state.ny.us/otda/fs/fs_apply.htm (Available also in Spanish, Chinese, Arabic and Russian.)

If you are uncertain whether or not you are entitled to Food Stamps, you can call the Food Stamp Call Center at FoodChange: 212.894.8060. Mon.–Fri. 9–5. Spanish, Russian and Chinese spoken also.

1600 Clifton Road, Atlanta, GA 30333
www.cdc.gov
On the CDC website diseases and other health topics are listed under the A-Z Index, or can be found through the search function. You can also call the CDC Info number 24 hours a day at 800.232.4636 to request free publications or information on HIV/AIDS, cancer, diabetes, tobacco-related illness, nutrition, and other frequently requested topics.

Hotlines

The Poison Control Center Hotline at 212.764.7667 or 800.222.1222 (TDD/TTY: 212.689.9014) will advise you in an emergency caused by any kind of poisoning. Nurses and pharmacists are available 24 hours a day, and all calls are confidential. Translators are available for 150 different languages.

For tuberculosis testing and treatment, call the New York City Bureau of Tuberculosis Education & Training at 212.442.9968, Mon.–Fri. 9–5. Provides referrals to free TB clinics, testing, exams, and treatment.

Call 311 to find a free Sexually Transmitted Disease Control (STDC) Clinic in any of the five boroughs. Services at each clinic may include Rapid HIV testing, HIV counseling, Hepatitis services, and emergency contraception services. Minors do not need parental permission. Medical records are kept confidential.

For free information about cancer, call the American Cancer Society at 800.227.2345, or contact them by mail: ACS Eastern Division, Cancer Information Department, PO Box 7, East Syracuse, NY 13057. Specify which type of cancer you are seeking information on.

There are more health organizations and sources of information in the chapter Women.

Health Insurance

For information on Medicaid, see the chapter on Financial Assistance.

If your child is uninsured, you may be able to get help paying for treatment by requesting public health insurance. Call the New York City Human Resources Administration, Department of Social Services at 877.472.8411, Mon.–Fri. 8–5.

There are several kinds of public health insurance in New York City, including:

- Medicaid: a program for New Yorkers who cannot afford to pay for medical care.
- Child Health Plus: for New Yorkers under 19 years of age when family income is too high to qualify for Medicaid.
- Family Planning Benefit Program: provides family planning services to any woman of child-bearing age and men who meet certain income and residency requirements.
- Medicaid Buy-In Program for Working People with Disabilities: a program for people with disabilities who are working and earning more than the income limit for regular Medicaid, allowing people to keep their health care coverage through Medicaid.

There are also specific plans for pregnant women (the Prenatal Care Assistance Program), adults over age 65 (Medicare), and people living with HIV/AIDS (the HIV Special Needs Plan). For a list of all health insurance plans provided by New York State, see www.health.state.ny.us/health_care or call 877.472.8411.

If you don’t have health insurance but are working and making too much money to qualify for the programs above, another option is Healthy New York. For uninsured working individuals and small business owners. For more information, call: 866.432.5849.

Some community health centers include in their mission offering more affordable care (sliding-scale or income-based rates) to low-income people who don’t have insurance. Two examples in New York City are the Ryan Health Center, with sites in the Upper West Side, Lower East Side and Chelsea (212.749.1820); and the Charles B. Wang Community Health Center, with locations in Flushing and Manhattan’s Chinatown (212.226.6682). Before visiting a provider with a sliding-scale policy, call to ask what documents you will need to bring to prove income eligibility.

Mental Health

Any person in need of psychiatric help can report to the emergency room of any municipal hospital, even if she/he has no insurance. Hospitals make referrals, link people to outpatient programs, and can help with medication if necessary.

Call 800.LIFENET (800.543.3638, Spanish 877.298.3373; Mandarin/Cantonese/Korean 877.990.8585) anytime for referrals to affordable mental health and/or substance abuse services in your community. The service is confidential and provided by experienced specialists. Possible referrals include inpatient and outpatient facilities, neighborhood clinics, hospitals, and therapists. Also provides crisis-intervention assistance.

NEW YORK CITY DEPARTMENT OF HEALTH AND MENTAL HYGIENE NYC-LINK SYSTEM OF SERVICES

Provides services for people diagnosed with Severe Persistent Mental Illness (SPMI) who are confined in NYC jails, involved in court adjudication, or returning to the community after leaving confinement or court. The program assists in linking clients to treatment, residential treatment programs, housing, medication, and the acquisition of Medicaid and other benefits. Also serves the juvenile population. Referrals not necessary. Contact the program in your borough:

P.O. Box 340, Brandon, VT 05733
Telephone: 802.247.3132
www.saferersociety.org

This agency has made some practical advice on prison rape available on tape and in an accompanying manual. The tapes, which are available in English and in Spanish, are titled “An Ounce of Prevention” and “Becoming a Survivor.” The project manual is designed for use by correctional administrators, chaplains, caseworkers, counselors, medical personnel, uniformed officers, and others. The manual includes information on institutional legal responsibilities, AIDS, a description of male Rape Trauma Syndrome, as well as a bibliography, a resource list, key court decisions, and excerpts from institutional policy statements on the use of condoms. The tapes present speakers from a variety of ethnic and racial backgrounds giving sound advice and are addressed chiefly to prisoners. The overall message is supportive, confirming that commonly held myths about rape, manhood and homosexuality have no basis in fact, and that survivors can go on to heal their wounds and lead perfectly normal lives. The full kit costs $15 plus shipping and handling and can be ordered from the above address. Tapes can be sent c/o chaplains or psychologists, if prisoners are not allowed to receive tapes directly.

Children with Incarcerated Parents

There are more than 2 million children in the United States with an incarcerated parent. Another 8 million children are estimated to have experienced parental incarceration at some time. An excellent resource addressing children of incarcerated parents is the Family and Corrections Network at www.fcnetwork.org

Click “Directory of Programs” to access a large listing of organizations nationwide that provide services to families and children of prisoners. There is also a “Children of Prisoners Library” with free brochures on topics such as “Conversations — Questions Children Ask,” “Visiting Mom or Dad,” “Communicating Tips for Families,” “Tips from Caregivers for Caregivers,” and “What Do Children of Prisoners Need?” There are also materials for health care providers, and an “Incarcerated Fathers Library” (for more on this, see below under “Parenting”).

See the Osborne Association’s Family Resource Center listing at the beginning of the first chapter for services to children with incarcerated parents.

Legal Services

It is often advisable for formerly incarcerated people to obtain some legal counseling soon after their release. Many areas of employment or types of licenses, for example, are prohibited to former prisoners unless they first secure a Certificate of Relief from Disabilities. Also, “cleaning up” or making accurate one’s rap sheet should be a top priority. Often there are errors listed on it that can prove detrimental, such as a felony reduced to a misdemeanor still listed as a felony, or a record of an arrest that did not lead to conviction. Good counseling, furthermore, will advise you of your rights when filling out job applications. It is not legal, for example, for an employer to ask you about any arrest that did not lead to conviction. Nor can an employer legally ask you anything about an alcohol or drug addiction you might have had or still have, unless it could interfere with your performing the job.

Laws control the lesser man.
Right conduct controls the greater one.

Special Services for Formerly Incarcerated People

LEGAL ACTION CENTER

225 Varick Street, Manhattan 10014
Telephone: 212.243.1313; 800.223.4044
www.lac.org

The Legal Action Center is a non-profit organization providing free legal services to formerly incarcerated people, recovering alcoholics, and substance abusers. It will help you obtain your rap sheet (arrest and conviction record) and provide information on how to “clean up” your rap sheet (seal records, correct inaccuracies, and obtain Certificates of Relief from Disabilities and Certificates of Good Conduct from the courts). It will also counsel you on your rights when seeking employment. If you feel you have been unfairly discriminated against as a formerly incarcerated person, or if you want information on how to obtain bonding for a particular job, Legal Action Center can be of help. It also offers advice and representation on a range of legal problems for people with HIV infection and their families, past and current substance abusers, women and children. Call Mon.–Fri. 9–5. Spanish also spoken. Accessible to people with disabilities.

The Legal Action Center’s website includes valuable resources for people facing the difficulties of reentry. Go to their website at www.lac.org/pubs/gratis.html and click on “Free Publications” to download articles such as “How to Get and Clean Up Your State Rap Sheet”, “Are You Somebody... With a Criminal Record?” and the 2004 Roadblocks to Reentry study.

Food

GREENMARKET

Telephone: 212.788.7476
www.cenyc.org
Greenmarket coordinates and promotes 46 farmers markets offering fresh, seasonal produce and other food across New York City. There are markets in all five boroughs. Call for a free map and schedule of the city's Greenmarkets, or download it from the group's website. Mon.–Fri. 9:30–5:30.

COMMUNITY SUPPORTED AGRICULTURE (CSA)

Just Food
1155 Avenue of the Americas, 3rd Floor, Manhattan 10036
Telephone: 212.645.9880
www.justfood.org
Community Supported Agriculture groups (CSAs) bring together neighborhood residents to buy organic vegetables and other local food direct from farmers, bypassing the middleman to keep prices reasonable. Some CSAs accept Food Stamps and have payment plans for low-income New Yorkers. Just Food is a non-profit organization coordinating the CSAs in New York City. Contact them to see if there is a group in your neighborhood.

FOOD CO-OPS

A co-op, or consumers cooperative, is a business that is jointly owned and run by its customers. The cooperative grocery stores in New York have variable membership rules (some require members to work shifts, while others offer discounts to members who work) but all attempt to make healthy food available and charge less than regular supermarkets would charge for the same products. Call the co-op nearest you for a description.

Flatbush Food Co-op

The U.S. Department of Agriculture offers smart shopper tips on its website, www.fnic.nal.usda.gov. Pamphlets include “Fruits and Veggies — More Matters,” “Practical, Healthy Weight Control” and several other general nutrition and health resources. Write them at the Food and Nutrition Information Center, National Agricultural Library, 10301 Baltimore Avenue, Room 105, Beltsville, MD 20705.

Clothing and Housewares

There are many areas throughout the city specializing in inexpensive clothing, furniture, and household items. Fourteenth Street, Third Avenue in el Barrio, and Orchard or Canal Streets on the Lower East Side are but a few examples for Manhattan. Asking around is the best bet. The telephone book’s Yellow Pages have a listing under “Second Hand Stores,” and this includes some Goodwill and Salvation Army outlets. Don’t be surprised to find a top-name designer jacket in next-to-new condition selling for as little as $5 at one of them. Also for clothing, check in the Yellow Pages under “Military Goods—Retail,” for a listing of Army and Navy surplus stores.

For a listing of Salvation Army Thrift Stores in the Greater New York area, visit the website: www.salvationarmy-usaechoast.org and click on “Salvation Army Thrift Stores.”

You can also find people selling used furniture, clothing and other items cheap on the Internet, using a free classified ad service such as Craigslist. Go to www.craigslist.org and click on “New York.”

Entertainment
(Movies, Clubs, Special Events, Etc.)

The daily newspapers are an excellent source of information on events around the city. The Daily News and New York Times both have weekend entertainment sections which appear in their Friday editions. El Diario, on Friday, contains a listing of non-profit events of special interest to the Hispanic community, and the Amsterdam News, out on Thursdays, has a similar calendar of events of interest to New York’s Black community. New York Magazine appears on Mondays, Time Out New York on Tuesdays, and both list restaurants, clubs, movies, theater performances, comedy clubs, and museum and gallery showings. The Village Voice, a free weekly appearing Wednesdays, has a comprehensive listing of films, plays, live music, dance, poetry, lectures, clubs, etc., along with reviews. It also contains a calendar of events that are free or inexpensive. WBAI Radio at 99.5 FM maintains a great community calendar, which is read regularly on the air and available on www.wbai.org. The station also broadcasts current events programming oriented toward many diverse New York City communities. Listen to WBAI’s “On the Count” prison issues show on Saturdays from 10:30 to noon.

Free subway and bus maps can be obtained at any subway station, many public libraries, or by calling 718.330.3322. For information on how to get from one point in the city to another, call the New York City Transit Authority’s Travel Information number: 718.330.1234. From www.mta.info you can access schedules and maps, information about Metrocards, and service advisories.

Those who can access the Internet have additional choices when seeking subway directions. The transit advocacy group Straphangers includes a handy mapping feature on their website: from www.straphangers.org

Click on “Getting Around” and enter your destination, or choose a neighborhood from the drop-down menu. Click “Go” to get a map including all streets and subways in the area. The website www.hopstop.com asks you to enter a start and destination address, then tells you which train to take, where to transfer, and how long the ride is going to take at certain times of day.

Senior citizens (city residents 65 years of age or older) and people with disabilities are eligible for reduced fare Metrocards. For more information, call the MTA at 718.243.4999 (TTY 212.541.6228.)

Access-A-Ride, administered by New York City Transit, provides transportation for people who are unable to use public bus or subway service for some or all of their trips. It offers shared ride, door-to-door paratransit service. Call 877.337.2017, 718.393.4259, 646.252.5252, TTY 646.252.5104, or TTY Relay 800.662.1220 and press “1” when you hear the recorded message to be connected to the Customer Information Line.

Hey! I Need a Job

Hey, I need a job
not no promises
no handouts
Just need a nine to fiver with decent pay.

I need a job
Not just summer tokens to cool the heat of riot thoughts
I NEED A JOB
Not monopoly money stamps to still the hunger of belly but not mind

HEY!! I NEED A JOB
Not no dollar finger stuck in the dike of my needs

Introduction

Our booklet, The Job Search, is designed to carry you, step by step, through the entire job-hunting process. It has been written with you in mind. Thus, such questions as “What can I do before leaving prison?” “How do I answer for my record in filling out a job application?” and “How can I restore my lost rights?” are discussed in some depth. Certain sections of the booklet may be more relevant for you than others, but we hope that every reader will derive some important insight into how to look for a job from even a casual reading.

The first question a formerly incarcerated person needs to ask him- or herself upon being released is, “Am I ready to work?” The answer to this question is not as simple as it might at first appear to be. If it were posed, instead, as “Do I need to make money?” or “Do I need a job?” a simple “yes” would quickly suffice. But being ready to work raises issues other than just a willingness to earn money. In order to succeed in the “outside” world, many of us need to do a lot of critical thinking about ourselves, and about how hard we are willing to work at staying out of prison, a place to which, according to statistics, no small number of us will be returning.

So let us begin with the most obvious question of all, and that is, “Why work?” For many, the most pressing answer to this question is: “It will keep me out of jail.” Now, I’m sure no one needs to be told, at least while incarcerated, that jail is not a very nice place to be. What happens, however, for some of us, is that once out in the streets, we choose to forget our jail experience, and before we know it, we are back to the same old patterns of destructive behavior. “I’m going to be the exception this time,” we reason, “the person who won’t get caught.” What those of us who think this way choose to ignore is that there is probably not a single person among the hundreds of thousands who have been imprisoned who hasn’t at one time or another thought the same thing. When committing an illegal act, who ever plans on getting caught and going to jail? So when we need that extra shot of incentive, it’s good to think back to our prison experience, the regimented life behind the walls, the lack of contact with family and friends, the relentless tensions and boredom to which we’ve been forcibly subjected, and to remember that a job, at the very least, will help keep us functioning on the outside — where we can proceed to get our lives together. For most of us, getting and maintaining that first job after release will be an accomplishment of which we can be proud.

Work also, of course, means sacrifice. It requires waking up early every day, and getting to work on time. It means, for many of us, beginning at a low weekly salary, which might not seem like much. Work also means having to muster up or develop enough self-discipline to keep our tempers under control, follow orders that may make little sense to us, and concentrate carefully on a single job assignment for long stretches of time. And this is another reason why work is important: it allows us to reclaim responsibility for our lives. In prison, we had little or no control over most of the decisions which affected us — what programs to enroll in, for example, what kinds of food to eat at mealtime, or how and when we might enjoy our privacy. We were forced to become dependent on others for fulfilling even the most basic of human needs.

Once out in the streets, however, we have the freedom to decide how we would like to conduct our lives. We have within us the power to make innumerable choices: where to work, with whom to live, which television station to watch, what to eat for dinner, etc. Of course, some of our choices may be limited by such factors as our financial situation, the skills we currently have, or the opportunities that knock at our door. Still, with determination and some good planning, we can utilize our work experience to broaden our options and, as time goes on, create new possibilities for ourselves. In this way, holding a job not only proves to us and to others that, after being dependent for so long on others, we are capable of directing our own lives, but it promises, also, to reward us with growing financial returns, which can translate into the support needed for raising a family, new opportunities for returning to school, and much more we might define as desirable.

Lastly, work enables us to enrich our lives. It exposes us to a variety of new people and experiences. It teaches us skills that can prove beneficial in our career development later on, and it can give us a sense of pride and accomplishment in knowing that at the end of a day, we have done our job, and done it well.

Once we have decided we are committed to finding work, it is helpful to examine some of the negative attitudes that we may have about ourselves. Such attitudes, otherwise, will surely frustrate our efforts, and no job counselor, no matter how adept, or job-hunting guide, however well written, would then serve much use.

The negative attitudes most commonly heard are:

- I'm an ex-con; no one will hire me.
- I have no skills.
- I don't want any dead-end or low-paying job.

I'm an ex-con; no one will hire me.
This argument can be dismissed as being simply untrue. In fact, it only serves to keep us in a cycle of self-defeat, and to justify a decision to do nothing at all to better ourselves. Remember that many people with criminal records, or drug histories for that matter, are now gainfully employed at all levels of society. The key to their success is their having developed a better sense of their own self-worth. The past is gone. Let's not forget that we've done our time and paid our debt to society. We now have as much right to work as any other person. It's true that finding work is not easy, and discrimination does exist. However, there are laws to protect us, as formerly incarcerated people (or ex-addicts), from being discriminated against. Also, with a little preparation, we can learn techniques to avoid job discrimination or, if confronted with it, successfully combat it.

I have no skills.
This second statement is, like the first, categorically untrue. There is no such thing as a person with no skills. We have all acquired skills, even if they are not job related. A typical homemaker, for example, in caring for his or her family, is likely to have had experience in family budgeting, child care, and cooking, all skills which can be of use to him or her in obtaining a paying job.
Many individuals, similarly, have developed skills in caring for cars, helping to raise children, or maybe painting and plastering an apartment. The trick here is to examine our past experiences, preferably with the aid of a job counselor, to determine just what skills we do possess and to what types of jobs they can be most applicable. We will then be much more able to persuade potential employers how we can be of value to them.
I don’t want any dead-end or low-paying job.

We can certainly sympathize with the person who doesn’t want to work at a low-paying or dead-end job. Yet, the reality is, many of us have to start our careers at entry-level positions, or at least take such jobs for a period of time.

It is important to be aware of a couple of things in this regard. First, many employers insist that new workers begin at the bottom and work their way up. This enables the employer to better judge the work qualities of a person before granting him or her more responsibilities. Secondly, dead-end jobs, or low-paying jobs, do serve some purpose: they help us pay our bills, afford us some work experience, and may provide us with some important contacts for further employment. If we must take a low-level position, let’s try always to have some long-range goals set for ourselves. Our job can then be seen as only a small step in our overall plans and need not be viewed as permanent. Above all, avoid the attitude, “I’ll never take such a low-paying job.” For the vast majority of us, there are no easy ways of getting rich fast; if there were, you wouldn’t be reading this at the moment, and I wouldn’t be here writing it!

For a lot of us, surviving in the “outside” world can be very scary — especially if we’ve been behind bars for much of our lives. We may find ourselves having to adjust to a whole new style in the way we interrelate with others. If we are willing to be ourselves, however, and to deal with others sincerely, we have overcome the biggest challenge. Remember, always, that there is never any reason to be defensive about who we are, or apologetic. We made mistakes, as have others, and we have paid for them. Our task now is to retake control over our lives, remembering that the decision as to whether or not we return to prison will rest, ultimately, with us as individuals — not with our parole officers, our friends and families, or outside society. Finding a job, and holding on to it, will be the first important step for most of us in readjusting. We hope The Job Search will be of help in this regard.

Author’s Note

Information and advice in writing The Job Search came from many different sources. Books and brochures on job hunting were consulted, though very few, unfortunately, address themselves to the non-professional job hunter. Likewise, only a limited number of currently available written materials discuss the specific legal problems an ex-inmate or substance abuser may confront in job hunting. What does exist can usually be found only on the desks of professionals, such as legal advisors, parole officers, or substance abuse counselors. Yet knowing one’s rights as an formerly incarcerated person, and knowing how to effectively present oneself as one when job hunting, can be vital issues for ex-inmates, even interconnected with their ability to stay out of prison. I was fortunate, then, when writing The Job Search, in having had the opportunity to meet with a number of persons whose expertise in these matters proved invaluable. They included legal advisors in the field of ex-offenders’ rights, substance abuse counselors, parole employment officers, and job developers who work closely in programs with ex-inmates.

This booklet, it should be noted, is oriented to what might be called “a middle audience.” Because prisons comprise individuals who manifest a full spectrum of reading abilities and experience, writing with all segments of the population in mind is impossible. I chose, then, to focus more on those individuals with fewer job-related skills in their backgrounds, and less formal education. Generally, they are the persons who are less aware of the resources available to them on the outside and of how to gain access to them. Still, I have little doubt that all of you will find some important pieces of information or advice within these pages.

Ultimately, the true test of this booklet’s effectiveness rests with you, the reader. Thus, any advice or suggestions which you might have for its improvement would be very much appreciated. They can be sent to the Correctional Services Librarian, New York Public Library, 455 Fifth Avenue, New York, NY 10016.
Preparing for the Job Search

A wealth of useful information for the ex-inmate can be found on the web pages of the National H.I.R.E. Network, established by the Legal Action Center. Though it is not a job-placement service, the goal of this organization is to increase the number and quality of job opportunities available to people with criminal records by changing public policies, employment practices, and public opinion. Visit www.hirenetwork.org and then click on "Resources & Assistance" for information on rap sheets, one's rights as an ex-inmate when applying for jobs, and a list of helpful agencies by state.

What You Can Do Before Leaving Prison

Take Advantage of Pre-Release Programs in Your Facility
Many of the pre-release units in prisons have specially trained staff to help you plan your re-entry into outside society. Most pre-release units maintain updated listings of governmental and community-based agencies which can be of help to you in finding a job, locating an appropriate drug program, or addressing any of a multitude of needs. If you plan to return to, or remain in, New York City after your release, you may want a copy of this booklet for yourself. Copies of Connections can be obtained, free of charge to New York State residents, by writing: Correctional Library Services, The New York Public Library, 455 Fifth Avenue, New York, NY 10016. You might also encourage your pre-release center to invite in, as some already do, representatives from community agencies or private companies that do a large amount of hiring, to give presentations.

Gather Together the Documents That You Will Need
In order to apply for jobs and be eligible for most private or governmental programs, it is mandatory that you have available certain types of documentation. If you begin to collect what you need now, a lot of valuable time and much frustration will be saved. At the very least, be sure to have a Social Security card (sometimes a number alone is not sufficient) and proof of identification (a birth certificate, baptismal papers, driver's license or non-driver’s photo ID, for example). Each agency has its own requirements as to documentation, but the following are commonly required, or may help in increasing your chances for eligibility:

- Military Discharge Papers
- Alien Registration Card (for non-U.S. Citizens)
- Prison Discharge Papers (given to you upon release)
- Proof of Education (college transcripts, or GED certificate, for example)
- Working Papers (required for persons under 18 years of age)
- Proof of Functional Disability
- Certificate of Relief from Disabilities
- Certificate of Good Conduct

Of course, not all of these documents can be obtained easily, if at all, while you are in prison, but collect what you can, and remember that, in some cases, a family member or friend on the outside may be of help.

Personal references are also required in applying for many jobs, or getting back into school. So start building yourself a file of recommendations from persons for whom you have worked in the past, or of people who can testify to your character. A letter from a member of the clergy in your neighborhood, a former employer, or a teacher may one day prove valuable in providing the necessary proof to a prospective employer that you have been rehabilitated and are ready to take on the responsibilities of a job.

Visit www.hirenetwork.org/publications.html for the Legal Action Center’s brochure “How to Obtain Important Documents.” Topics include: Social Security Cards, Birth Certificates, Naturalization Cards, Voter Registration, Driver’s Licenses, Non-Driver ID, and Passports.

What You Can Do Upon Release

Restore Your Rights

As a result of a felony, or certain misdemeanor convictions, you may have lost your right to engage in certain types of employment, or apply for certain types of licenses. In some cases, you may be prohibited, legally, from applying for certain civil service positions, which are classified as public office, such as fire fighter; also working in a liquor establishment, or being licensed as a barber or cosmetologist, real estate salesperson, pharmacist, notary public, security guard, etc.

To restore your rights, it is necessary to obtain:

- a Certificate of Relief from Disabilities, for which you are eligible if you have been convicted of only misdemeanors and not more than one felony, or one felony only.
- a Certificate of Good Conduct, for which you are eligible if you have been convicted of more than one felony.

WHAT CERTIFICATES ARE

Certificates are an assumption of rehabilitation and evidence employers and licensing agencies must consider when licensing or hiring.

WHAT CERTIFICATES CAN DO

Certificates have the power to remove any legal bar or disability imposed on you as a result of having been convicted of the crime(s) specified on the Certificate. If you have a Certificate, not only do you become eligible to apply for positions you might otherwise be barred from, but the Certificate informs the employer that the State or a court assumes you are rehabilitated, and that the employer should take this into consideration. Remember that under State law, it is illegal for an employer to deny someone a job based on his or her conviction, unless the employer can demonstrate it is job related. The law says that in deciding whether or not a conviction is job related, the employer must consider a number of factors including evidence of rehabilitation (a Certificate). With a Certificate, then, the burden of proof is on the employer to demonstrate that hiring you would be a risk to people or property, or that your conviction is directly related to the job for which you are applying. (A former bank embezzler, once released, would have difficulty getting a job handling cash at a bank, for example.) A Certificate is not a pardon and you would still be required to disclose your conviction record if you are asked about it.
Remember that some occupational licenses may be denied you for certain employment, such as with security firms, unless you have one of the Certificates.

APPLYING FOR A CERTIFICATE
You may apply for a Certificate of Relief from Disabilities, which is granted to persons without multiple felony convictions, immediately after your conviction. If no State time is served, you may apply at the court at which the conviction took place. If you have an out-of-state conviction or a federal conviction you have to apply for your certificate from the New York State Division of Parole.

To apply for a Certificate of Good Conduct, which is granted to persons who have multiple felony convictions, you may have to wait three to five years after completing your most recent sentence depending on the severity of your most serious conviction. For example: you may have two felonies, a class E felony from 1980 and a class B felony from 1990 and you were discharged from parole in 2002. Since your most serious crime was a B felony you would have to wait five years from the completion of your most recent sentence (2002). Therefore, you would not be eligible to apply for a Certificate of Good Conduct until 2007.

To request an application form for a Certificate of Relief from Disabilities if you have served State time, or for a Certificate of Good Conduct, write:

The New York State Division of Parole
Certificate Review Unit
97 Central Avenue
Albany, NY 12206
518.485.8953

Application forms are also available at the New York State Division of Parole website at https://parole.state.ny.us/ParoleCert.pdf

For more information, contact your parole/probation officer, or The Legal Action Center, 225 Varick Street, NYC 10014, telephone: 212.243.1313. The Legal Action Center also has a brochure for formerly incarcerated people entitled “Certificates of Relief from Disabilities and Certificates of Good Conduct: What You Can Do About Criminal Convictions When Looking for Work,” available at [www.lac.org/doc_library/Certificates of Relief 2007.pdf](www.lac.org/doc_library/Certificates of Relief 2007.pdf)

Certificates generally take one year to be processed.

Remember, you are eligible to apply for the Certificates even if your convictions took place outside of New York State.

Clean Up Your Rap Sheet
All too often, arrests that should be sealed (arrests not leading to convictions, youthful offender adjudications, or convictions for non-criminal offenses) remain open (unsealed) on your record, and available for potential employers to see.

You should assume that every employer will ask you questions about your arrest and conviction record. Employers who can legally fingerprint you and get from New York State a copy of your rap sheet are: civil service employers; banks and financial institutions; bonding agencies; hospitals; museums; child care agencies; home care agencies; mental health facilities; school bus driving companies; security guard companies; and law enforcement agencies (who are entitled to see sealed information as well). It is to your advantage, then, to clean up your record, and to have sealed whatever errors or unnecessary information may appear on it. Try to correct these mistakes before you begin to apply for jobs.

REVIEWING YOUR RAP SHEET
If you are currently serving a sentence in a New York State prison or in a county or city jail, you will be sent a copy of your rap sheet free of charge. You must include your name, any aliases, your date of birth, your DIN, and state how long you will be incarcerated. The Division of Criminal Justice Services will not send you your rap sheet if you will be incarcerated for less than 45 days. Send your request to:

NYS Division of Criminal Justice Services (DCJS)
Record Review Unit
4 Tower Place
Albany, New York 12203–3764
518.485.7675 or 518.457.9847
If you are not incarcerated, or if you will be incarcerated for less than 45 days, you can receive a copy of your rap sheet by sending to DCJS a form called “Request for Record Review.” Obtain this form by writing to the address above, or e-mail RecordsReview@dcjs.state.ny.us
You must provide your complete name and mailing address in order to receive the form.

Once you have filled out the form, there will be a $50 fee for processing your request. Only Western Union, U.S. Postal Service, American Express, or bank money orders will be accepted. Money orders must be made out to “N.Y. State Division of Criminal Justice Services.” Do not send cash or any other form of payment. The $50 fee may be waived if you can supply proof of financial hardship, such as evidence that you currently receive Public Assistance or Medicaid (be sure that the card is signed). If you are not incarcerated, your attorney may request this information for you; however, you must supply written, notarized authorization for him or her to do so.

Legal Action Center or your local office of the Legal Aid Society can also assist you in obtaining your rap sheet.

NOTE: The Legal Action Center (225 Varick Street, New York, NY, 10014) has available for ex-offenders, upon request, a booklet entitled “How to Get and Clean Up Your New York State Rap Sheet.” The publication is available on the Internet by visiting www.hirenetwork.org/publications.html

To obtain a federal rap sheet, you must write the Federal Bureau of Investigation (FBI). State that your request is under the Freedom of Information Act, and send (1) a signed written request stating what you are requesting with your complete mailing address, (2) a full set of prints (available at any police precinct for a fee) with the date, your name, and your date and place of birth, (3) a money order or certified check for $18 made payable to the Treasury of the United States. Send all of the above to:

The Federal Bureau of Investigation
Criminal Justice Information Services Division

Attn: Record Request
1000 Custer Hollow Road
Clarksburg, WV 26306

Many employers are not authorized to get a copy of your rap sheet from DCJS. So you may find that a prospective employer will conduct a criminal background check using a consumer reporting agency. Both the Federal and New York State Fair Credit Reporting laws require that an employer get your permission before they conduct a background check using a consumer reporting company. There are a great many companies that provide this service to employers. You should get a copy of your consumer (credit) report for yourself as you prepare to look for a job. These reports are often incomplete or inaccurate and may require you to spend some time correcting the information. Usually there is a fee to get your credit report. However, three major credit bureaus will supply one free credit report per year. Visit www.annualcreditreport.com for more information.

An employer or individual may also get a copy of your criminal record from the Office of Court Administration (OCA). This is the agency that keeps all court information on file. An OCA background check costs $55. Visit www.nycourts.gov/apps/chrs for more information.

Remember that all of these procedures (obtaining and cleaning up errors on your rap sheet, sealing arrests not leading to convictions, etc.) will take time and cost you money. So start the process now, so you can be ensured that prospective employers do not see any unnecessary information or errors when obtaining access to your record.

In a like manner, upgrading a less-than-honorable military discharge can be advantageous to your future. To obtain an application, call or visit the New York State Division of Veterans Affairs, at 245 West Houston Street, 2nd Floor, New York, NY, 10014. Telephone: 212.807.7229 ext. 4877 or 1.800.827.1000 for National Office.
Surviving Until the Right Job Comes Through

Assess Your Resources and Plan Realistically

The search for work may take as long as a year, especially in periods of high unemployment. Thus, it is important to plan a long-term strategy. Here are some of the questions to ask yourself:

- Can my spouse help support me while I seek work?
- Am I eligible for unemployment insurance, or any other type of government assistance, such as food stamps or welfare?
- If I have savings, how long will they last?
- Do I have friends or relatives from whom I might borrow?
- How long will I be able to continue on a survival-type budget, given the resources available to me?

Keep in mind that looking for work often turns out to be a full-time job in itself. To do it well requires a lot of concerted effort and persistence. The more time you can allocate to the task, the better your chances of landing a suitable job.

Be Willing to Take a Less Desirable Job, or Part-Time Work, to Begin

Most people need to work, at least part-time, to support themselves while job hunting. Indeed, it is rare for anyone to find the job they desire most when they first (re)enter the job market.

But this is no reason to be discouraged. Whatever the job you choose, it will help pay the bills, provide you with work experience, teach you work habits if you are inexperienced, and possibly furnish you with contacts which can lead you to a better position.

It is important to be aware, also, that entry-level positions are not all necessarily dead-end. Indeed, at many companies it is required, regardless of your background, that you begin at the bottom and work your way upward. So in considering an entry-level position, also ask what opportunities exist for training and for advancement within the company.

The advantage of part-time employment, or day labor, for which you get paid at the end of each day worked, is that it can help support you in paying for the bare necessities of life, while still allowing you free time to pursue job contacts and interviews.

Develop a Network of Personal Support

Looking for work is never easy. There will, in all probability, be many failures before the final triumph. Having one other or several other persons with whom you can share your experiences can be very important in job hunting.

If you have a family, or friends who are concerned, make yourself accountable to them. Tell them how each day went, and what your next day’s plans will be. Also, if you can, join a job club. In a job club, members give each other the personal support needed in looking for work. They discuss with one another what can be learned from their daily job-hunting experiences; they role-play interviews and help one another in developing effective search strategies. When one member gets hired for a job, he or she can notify the others when openings occur at his or her place of employment. Ask a job counselor for a job club contact, or for help in starting your own job club.

Explore Volunteer Work for the Advantages It Offers

Volunteer work, even on a part-time basis, has the following advantages:

- You can explore a career field in which you think you might be interested to find out whether or not it is what you’d like to pursue.
- You can gain experience and make contacts on the volunteer job which might later materialize into a paying job as openings occur.
- You will have the opportunity of gaining valuable work experience, perhaps in a field you’d like to pursue. This can go onto your resume or future job application as proof that you are a highly motivated individual, interested in advancing.
Assessing Your Skills:
Job Testing and Counseling

A very important step in preparing for the job hunt involves assessing your own particular interests and skills. Sometimes a person knows exactly what field of work he or she wishes to pursue. Perhaps such a person has had experience in this field and developed some useful skills which will make job hunting easier for him or her. Or perhaps they have been told the market for certain skills is growing rapidly, and they can be assured of finding work in that area of employment once they have been trained.

There are others, however, who are not sure what their occupational skills or interests are. Maybe they've worked for short periods of time in a variety of jobs, none of which they've enjoyed. Or perhaps they've just never had the opportunity to seriously think about what skills or interests they have developed or would like to develop if given the opportunity. Whatever the case, an occupational assessment, or evaluation, of yourself is extremely important. It helps make you aware of what you have to offer, and helps you in establishing some realistic career goals, both short- and long-range.

There are people, usually called employment or job counselors, who are adept at helping you assess your skills and interests. Usually they will interview you and then ask you to take one or more tests as part of the evaluation process. The test may be geared toward measuring your abilities in a certain skill, or measuring your attitude toward the particular field of work. (Referring you to a full-time typing job when you hate sitting at a desk all day would not be very wise.) The tests you may be asked to take are not ones you have to worry about or study for in advance. After you've taken the test(s), you will be able to discuss the results with a counselor as part of your assessment process.

If you would prefer to begin by assessing your own skills without the help of a job counselor, there are books which can help you do this. Visit the job information center of your public library (see listings in Connections under “FINDING A JOB”) and ask for materials on skills assessment. Some are organized like workbooks, and take you step by step through the procedure.

Writing a Resume

What Is a Resume?
A resume is a summary of your work experience, education, and special interests. It organizes the relevant facts about you in written form and shows the prospective employer what you have done and are able to do.

Why a Resume?
- More employers are now requiring that you have a resume when applying for a job.
- A resume is a written presentation of you to the employer, and as such, can help you gain entry to a personal interview. A resume serves as a visual reminder for the employer, after the interview, of who you are and what you discussed.
- A resume, even if you were never to show it to anyone, helps you organize your thinking about yourself and what you have to offer.

Help in Writing a Resume
Because a well-written resume is so important in job hunting, it is often a good idea to get some expert help or criticism in writing one. Try visiting your public library's job information center, for example, or an employment counseling service, where you will find materials on how to write a resume, plus sample resumes, from which you can choose a model appropriate for you. Also, specially trained staff will be able to look over what you have written and help you strengthen those parts of your resume which are in need of improvement.

Two of the many websites which offer valuable advice on how to prepare resumes and cover letters are:
www.jobweb.com/Resumes_Interviews.aspx
www.jobstar.org/tools/resume/res-what.htm
Remember that a resume should be neat in appearance and that it should always be typed. Your local public library should have public use computers with word processing capabilities and printers.

There are many job hunters who for one reason or another have little formal education or job-related experience in their backgrounds. Perhaps they've spent many years in foster homes or prisons, perhaps they've worked illegally, or maybe they've had a number of jobs but because of a personal or drug-related problem were never able to hold one for very long. If this is the case, they will need to evaluate their life experiences carefully in terms of the skills they have invariably picked up, and will need to learn techniques for presenting themselves in the most positive light to employers. There are some resume-writing books and job counselors available to help them.

Helpful Points in Resume Writing

CHOOSE THE TYPE OF RESUME BEST SUITED TO YOUR INDIVIDUAL EXPERIENCE

Because the resume is a summation for the employer of who you are, it is important to organize the information on it to your best advantage.

Though there is no set format for a resume, generally it can be said to fall into one of two categories: the Chronological Resume, or the Skills (Functional) Resume.

The chronological resume lists the jobs you've had and the schools you've attended, all in chronological order, beginning with the most recent and going back in time. It is best suited for those people who have a relatively unbroken work record since leaving school, have worked at jobs for long periods of time, and can offer good explanations for any time gaps in their work record (a return to school, service in the military, etc.).

The skills (or functional) resume stresses your particular skills and abilities, and puts less emphasis on dates and names of employers and schools. It is best suited for those who have changed jobs frequently, not worked for long periods of time, and/or acquired most of their skills while incarcerated or in non-job-related pursuits.

Be sure to include all of the skills you may have, not just the ones that you've learned on the job. Many of us have skills that we don't generally think of when applying for a job. Yet they can often be valuable in our ability to adapt to new job situations. If you can speak a second language, for example, include it on your resume. If you can type sixty words per minute, say so. Have you ever operated any special types of vehicles — forklifts, or trailer trucks? Say it. Or trained and supervised someone on the job — another inmate, for example, at the facility's library or pre-release center? Have you ever exhibited leadership skills such as working with young people in a neighborhood youth program, or coaching an award-winning basketball team at summer camp? Don't neglect to list such things. Remember also that employers are interested in your ability to get along with others on the job as much as they are in formal skill training. Show them in as many ways as possible that you possess the attributes they're looking for.

CONSOLIDATE YOUR INFORMATION

Most employers prefer one-page resumes. If you've done six carpentry jobs, each lasting eight weeks, over the last ten years, write “Carpentry Skills—1 year’s experience.”

LIST THE SKILLS AND RESPONSIBILITIES THAT ACCOMPANIED EACH OF YOUR JOBS AND USE ACTION VERBS WHENEVER POSSIBLE.

It is not enough to say you worked for a particular company X number of years. Compare the following two examples as to the impression they might make upon the employer.

(a) 1999–2002 Whitney Paper Co., Bronx, N.Y.
Clerk

(b) 1999–2002 Whitney Paper Co., Bronx, N.Y.
Storeroom Clerk.
Responsible for deliveries of all incoming and outgoing orders in the stationery and desk supplies department.
Organized and filed order records to a total of 600 invoices per month.
Trained and supervised two beginning clerks.
Operated a forklift.

Some action verbs to help with your resume:
achieved, adapted, addressed, administered, arranged, assessed, assisted, authorized, collaborated, conducted, demonstrated, designed, developed, devised, directed, edited, enforced, evaluated, filed, formulated, fostered, generated, handled, hired, implemented, improved, initiated, launched, maintained, managed, marketed, mastered, motivated, operated, organized, oversaw, planned, procured, programmed, promoted, provided, publicized, recommended, reorganized, repaired, represented, researched, scheduled, screened, set up, simplified, supervised, trained, used.

HOW TO ACCOUNT ON YOUR RESUME FOR TIME INCARCERATED

Employers don’t like to see time lapses on your resume. They surmise that a person who has a strong record of employment or schooling is a more stable and dependable person, and thus less of a risk to hire. In being honest about the time you spent in prison, you will not have to worry about time lapses on your resume.

In fact, the vast majority of counselors who work with formerly incarcerated people advise that you be honest about the time you spent incarcerated. Though there is discrimination in hiring practices in the “real world,” any short-term gains from not telling the truth are far outweighed by long-term consequences.

Here are some issues to consider: if an employer learns that you are being dishonest, you will most certainly not be hired, and if already hired, you will probably be fired, no matter how well you are doing on the job. In hiring you, an employer puts trust in you, and it is only natural that he or she will feel hurt in learning that he or she has been deceived. For a fuller discussion of the reasons why you should choose to be honest, including the legal ramifications of choosing to be dishonest, see page 239 (Special Considerations: Telling the Truth About Your Conviction(s) When Applying for a Job). To learn more on how to avoid discrimination as someone who has been incarcerated, see page 240 (Special Considerations: How to Avoid Being Discriminated Against When Looking for Work).

When composing your resume, be sure to explain how you spent the time in prison to your best advantage. If you finished your GED program, or received tutoring, or took a correspondence course, say so under “Educational Background.” If you were trained and did work in the prison optics program, Corcraft, or in asbestos removal, list this under “skills,” or “work experience.” Did you do porter work in prison, maintenance, landscaping? Ever work in a prison office, or library, or transitional services center? List it.

It is the rare formerly incarcerated individual who cannot list at least a few positive skills or programs he or she was involved in while in prison.

On the following pages are the resumes of three fictitious persons looking for work. Note especially the manner in which these formerly incarcerated people have chosen to present their time in prison on their respective resumes.

To help you in resume construction, numbered notes have been added alongside each resume, and correspond to explanations following the resume.

Notes to Sample Resume I

Darryl Cooper spent three years, from 1998 to 2001, incarcerated in a New York State Correctional Facility. In his resume, he has learned to use his experience to his best advantage.

1 Show that while in prison you’ve done constructive things with your time, not just “done” time. Mention any educational achievements, for example, or work experience you’ve had while incarcerated.

2 If you’ve been involved in any organized prison activities or programs, list them. They help indicate to a prospective employer what you may have experienced while away in terms of personal growth and development.

3 Consolidate and make use of your short-term employment experience. Four three-month painting jobs over a four-year period can be presented as “1 year’s experience.”

4 In choosing references, select persons who can testify as to what you are like today, how you have changed, and your readiness to settle down and take on the responsibilities of a job.

Notes to Sample Resume II

Hector Diaz spent 2001–2004 incarcerated at an upstate correctional facility. His training as an asbestos remover at the prison has provided him with marketable skills that he can use now that he is being released. He has learned that the New York State Labor Department lists asbestos handling among the fastest-growing occupations in New York City. Although Hector realizes he must acknowledge his conviction when asked on his job application or during an interview if he has ever been convicted of a crime, he names the school upstate which granted him a degree without mentioning that he received the degree as a prisoner, and he lists the facility where he received his asbestos training only as “Mid-Apple C.F.,” not “Mid-Apple Correctional Facility.” This assures that information about his incarceration remains between him and the interviewer, not screeners or whoever else might have access to his resume. After gaining access to an interviewer, he will have the opportunity to explain his conviction and his personal growth and change while incarcerated. (For a more detailed discussion on accounting for time incarcerated, see Appendix, page 257.)

1 Be sure to include all of the formal training and education you may have received, including courses in the armed forces and in prison, for example. It is to your advantage to show the prospective employer that you spent your time productively while incarcerated.

2 When listing your work experience, always emphasize your responsibilities on the job, and the skills that you learned or needed to employ. This is as true for “low-level” jobs as it is for more professional ones. Make your jobs sound important. Hector was sent with fellow asbestos workers from his facility to work in non-profit and local government sites throughout the county. He makes reference to this as well as to the fact he worked as part of a team.

3 Use action verbs for more effect (managed; supervised, trained, organizing, selling, etc.).
Play up any personal data and advantages that might be useful to your job (fluent in Spanish, driver’s license) or in explaining your character (basketball coach).

It is not usually necessary to list specific references on the resume.

Notes to Sample Resume III
Jennifer Blake spent most of 2001 incarcerated on Rikers Island in New York City, convicted on a misdemeanor charge. Because she has had little formal education and no long history of job experience, Jennifer has decided to construct a skills-type resume. She will focus on the many skills she learned while being a homemaker living with a disabled grandparent (Homemaking), a volunteer health worker (Health Care), a security guard (Relating to the Public), and working as an inmate in jail. While incarcerated, she learned skills as a cook’s assistant. (For a more detailed discussion on accounting for time incarcerated, see Appendix, page 257.) Many job counselors advise that it is no longer necessary to state “References available upon request,” as it is self-evident.

In choosing a skills-type resume, emphasize the skills you have learned from your non-job-related experience, including volunteer work, as well as from your paid job experience. List your responsibilities and make them sound important, especially in light of your career objective.

If you have little job experience in your past, volunteer for work in the field in which you are interested. It provides you with legitimate work experience and possible contacts for paying jobs. It also gives you the opportunity to show a prospective employer that you’re motivated to move ahead.

Why not consider furthering your education? Many free or low-cost courses exist throughout the city in a variety of fields, such as High School Equivalency and vocational skills. Listed on a resume, they will impress an employer and show that you are a person who wants to learn and has taken the initiative to do so.

If you didn’t finish high school, omit the dates. If, however, you are asked specifically about being a high school graduate, be honest. Remember that any information on the resume can always be checked for verification by the employer.
Be sure to include all information that might be relevant to your job objective or revealing of your character. Certificates in swimming and first aid, for example, are relevant to pursuing a career in nursing. Being a basketball player at school indicates that you are skillful as a team player, competitive, and confident.

How to Use a Resume
1. Clip a copy of your resume to your job application. You can do this at a personnel office, for example, especially if the resume contains information not asked for on the application.

2. Bring copies of your resume to job interviews, and leave a copy with the interviewer.

3. Leave copies of your resume with the any job-placement agency with which you establish contact.

4. Give copies of your resume to friends, relatives, or associates, who may run across job openings from time to time and notify you of them.

5. In job hunting some people may need to construct two or more resumes to focus on different aspects of their experience. If, for example, you've had many different jobs in your work history, you may wish to emphasize some in applying for one job and others in applying for another job. You might also want to readapt your “job objective” depending on the opening for which you are applying.

Finding Out Where the Jobs Are
- Search the classified ads
- Apply directly to the employer
- Use employment agencies
- Use employment or placement services
- Visit union offices for information about union jobs and apprenticeship programs
- Notify friends, relatives, and neighbors
- Make use of bulletin boards
- Use the computer to find a job

Searching the Classified Ads
It is wise when looking for work to make a daily habit of checking the “help wanted” or classified ads in your local paper. In New York City, daily papers which include help wanted ads include the Daily News, the New York Post, the New York Times (see especially the Sunday edition), El Diario, and the Wall Street Journal. Weeklies include the Village Voice and the Amsterdam News. The local branch of your public library will carry subscriptions to some of these papers. Better yet, you may choose to visit The New York Public Library's Job Information Center, where you will find the latest help wanted ads from newspaper and job information sources in one location, already clipped and posted for your convenience.

Job ads are sometimes listed first under general categories, such as General Help, Business Help, or Professional, then alphabetically by job title. Some ads ask that you submit a letter of application, resume, and references. Otherwise you may be given a telephone number which you can call to find out more information before deciding whether or not to apply.

Three samples of classified ads follow, along with explanations and a listing of common abbreviations used.

Applying Directly to the Employer

One of the most obvious ways to learn where job openings are is to contact employers directly. You can begin with the Yellow Pages of the telephone book. There you will find businesses listed by classification. If, for example, you decide you would like to work in a hotel or department store, simply check under “Hotels,” or “Department Stores,” and you will find an alphabetical listing by name, accompanied by address and phone number.

If you know of no specific person to contact, go to the personnel or human resources office of the firm, and tell the receptionist you are looking for work and are interested in filling out an application. Sometimes you will be interviewed by a personnel officer as soon as you have filled out the application. Other times you will be asked to leave the completed form and told you will be notified as soon as they have an opening.

If you can make a direct contact with a person in the firm who does the hiring for his or her department, this is usually more effective than being processed through a personnel office.

Job-Searching on the Internet

In recent years job-hunting using the Internet has become increasingly common. Many companies and agencies use the Internet to advertise their openings, both on the company’s own website and on websites created for job-seekers. Some job websites are informal bulletin boards, such as the jobs section of Craigslist (www.newyork.craigslist.org), while others such as Career Builder (www.careerbuilder.com) feature places to post your resume for prospective employers and offer a range of job search choices. When searching for a job online, you will need an e-mail address, both to e-mail your resume to employers and to sign in on the job search websites. E-mail addresses are also requested on quite a few paper job applications today. You can sign up for a one-session class on using e-mail, or ask for help setting up a free e-mail account, at most public libraries and some formerly incarcerated people’s organizations.

Employment Agencies
Another important source of finding out where jobs are is the employment agency. At an employment agency, you will be interviewed, and an attempt will be made to match your skills with those required for a specific job opening. Then you will be sent for an interview to an appropriate employer.

Employment agencies operate as businesses. You and/or the employer will have to pay for the services of having you placed. Be aware, however, that you should never pay in advance for a service that is only promised. Also, in your dealings with employment agencies, be sure to read any contract carefully before signing.

For a listing of employment agencies in New York City, check the phone book’s Yellow Pages under the heading “Employment Agencies.” Some, but not all, will specialize in specific job fields. If you are interested in temporary work, look in the Yellow Pages under “Employment Contractors — Temporary Help.”

Employment or Placement Services
Employment services, or placement services, as they are sometimes called, are similar to employment agencies in that they both provide job placement. Employment services, however, do not charge fees. They are usually attached to a government or neighborhood agency, a school, or a job-training program.

Check carefully the two chapters of this booklet entitled “Organizations for Formerly Incarcerated People” and “Finding a Job.” Many of the listings, such as the New York State Department of Labor, Job Services Division, are employment services; others, such as the Center for Employment Opportunities, include placement services in their descriptions. Note that some of the employment services listed specialize in job placement for specific groups, such as formerly incarcerated people, the economically disadvantaged, veterans, recovering alcoholics, or people with disabilities.

Sources of Information for Union Jobs and Apprenticeship Programs
Union offices are still another source for help in job hunting. Each trade has its own local union office, which you can call for information on available job opportunities. For a listing of union groups, look under “Labor Organizations” in the New York County Business to Business Yellow Pages (available at your public library). Be aware, however, that a difficult economic situation makes it very unlikely that a non-union person will be accepted into a union for a position. Apprenticeships are similar to on-the-job-training programs in that a person learns a job skill by doing it. The apprentice is taught by a person who is an expert at the skill, called a journeyworker, in a training program which lasts usually from two to six years. Often, a trade union controls the number of apprentices to be chosen and is responsible for selecting and training them at the work site. It is very difficult to obtain information about available apprenticeship programs. However, you can learn what groups in private industry are currently recruiting for apprentices by calling the New York State Department of Labor, New York Regional Office, at 212.775.3354 or checking www.labor.state.ny.us/apprenticeship/appindex.shtm

Notifying Friends, Relatives, and Neighbors That You Are Looking for Work
Many times jobs are filled when employers learn about possible applicants by word of mouth. This may happen, in fact, even before new openings are scheduled to be advertised. Let all of your friends, relatives, and neighborhood contacts know that you are looking for work. They can spread the word, and as soon as they hear of an opening at work, or elsewhere, they can notify you at once.
Making Use of Bulletin Boards
Many times neighborhood bulletin boards can play an important role in job hunting. They can be used both by people advertising job openings and by people searching for jobs. If you are looking for work, simply list on a small index card what types of jobs you are looking for, and be sure to include, along with your name, a phone number or address where you can be reached. If you have any special skills, such as playing percussion, for example, teaching a foreign language or tutoring math, an ad on the bulletin board can also result in a way for you to earn a little extra cash. Bulletin boards can often be found in local supermarkets, laundromats, and community centers, among other places.
Writing a Cover Letter

There are certain times when it is necessary to write a cover letter when applying for a job. Many classified ads, for example, include a postal box number with a request that you reply by mail. You may also find yourself needing to write to a firm that hasn’t advertised. As in responding to a classified ad, you will want here also to write a cover letter requesting an interview, and attach to it a copy of your resume.

The letter should be typed. Be neat and informative, but also to the point. The cover letter is a reflection, along with your resume, of what you are like as a person. It deserves careful consideration.

The body of the letter can be divided into three parts. In the first, you make mention of the job you are applying for, and where you became aware of the opening. In the second part of the letter, you point out those aspects of your background which relate particularly to the job in question, and indicate why you want the position. The third section of the letter should request an interview and include a phone number or e-mail address where you can be reached.

If the letter is to be addressed to a personnel director or head of a department, call and ask the receptionist for the person’s full name. A personal letter usually makes a better impression. Otherwise, “To Whom It May Concern” will suffice.

New York, NY 10011

I am replying to an ad for warehouse help that appeared in the New York Post on March 11, 2006.

Since graduating from High School in 2003, I have gained valuable experience in warehouse work. In one of my jobs, I worked as a warehouse clerk for a large import/export company. In another, I worked at a lumber warehouse in yard work. In addition, the plumbing business is one with which I am already somewhat familiar. My uncle is an experienced plumber, and when I was in high school, I did some work with him informally as an assistant in order to earn some extra cash. I believe my experience would make me a valuable employee.

I would appreciate the opportunity to come in for an interview and to talk with you further about my qualifications. I do not have a telephone, but you can leave a message for me at (718) 330-0911, or at the above address. A copy of my resume is attached.

Sincerely,

Nelson Jimenz
Filling Out a Job Application

When you apply for a job, you will be asked to fill out a job application. The job application represents you to the employer, and how you fill it out tells the employer a lot about you. It is your chance to make a good impression on paper.

To fill out a job application, you will need to know a lot of information about yourself. It is a good idea to start gathering this information well in advance, so you can have it ready by the time you start looking for a job.

You might want to fill out the fact sheet on page 263, detach it from the book, and carry it with you whenever you go for a job. This way, important names, dates, and addresses will always be at your fingertips and you will save yourself time.

Remember, it is important that your writing be clear and neat in filling out a job application. It might be wise to print, unless you are told specifically “Write; Don’t Print.” And, of course, your signature is always written, never printed.

Look over the entire application before you begin, and think before you write. This way you will not make mistakes and have to cross out words. How neat you are tells the employer how careful you are as a person.

Try to answer all of the questions asked on the job application. If any do not pertain to you, it’s still recommended you put something in the space provided, such as “N.A.” (Not Applicable) or “None.” For example, if you have never served time in the Armed Forces, on the application form you would use “N.A.” in the following manner:

U.S. Military Experience    N.A.
Rank    N.A.

When asked about your criminal record on job applications, remember: It is illegal for an employer to ask you if you have ever been arrested. He or she can only ask you about your convictions.

If you are asked an illegal question, see page 240 (Special Considerations: How to Avoid Being Discriminated Against When Looking for Work). If asked whether you have ever been convicted of a crime, and you have been, answer YES and add WILL EXPLAIN AT INTERVIEW. I CAN BE BONDED. (For more detailed discussion, see Appendix, page 250.)

Some employers will interview you right after you fill out a job application. In this case, they will look over the application first, or in your presence, as a basis for the interview. Other employers, if they are interested, will interview you at a later date.

Job applications are usually divided into four major categories:

- Personal Information
- Educational Background
- Work Experience
- References

Personal Information

For filling out the section on Personal Information, you will need to have available:

- a phone number or address where you can be reached
- your Social Security number
- your date of birth
- the name of someone who can be notified in case of emergency

You are also likely to be asked whether or not you’ve ever been convicted of a crime, if you have any disability which might interfere with your performing the job, whether or not you are a citizen, and what hobbies or pastimes you enjoy.

Educational Background

To fill out information on your Educational Background, be sure to have with you as complete a record as possible of all the schools you’ve attended, such as grade school, junior and senior high school, and college. You’ll need to know where the schools are located, the years that you attended, and the type of degree or diploma you may have received.
If you received any on-the-job training, took classes in the military, or went to any special type of trade or vocational school, include it. If you've taken college classes, but not received a degree, show the number of credits that you earned.

Work Experience

Under the category "Work Experience" you will probably be asked to list the jobs you have had, starting with the most recent and going back. For each, be prepared to give the name of your company or employer, its address, the dates when you were employed, the type of work you performed, your title, and, if asked, your supervisor's name, your salary, and the reasons for your leaving.

If you've never had many jobs, perhaps you have had some unpaid work experience where you picked up skills worth noting. Have you ever tutored, for example, helped someone renovate their house, done volunteer work for a community group, or babysat?

For suggestions on how to account in your work history for time incarcerated, see page 202.

References

References are people familiar with either your work or your character whom the employer may wish to contact. They can include former employers, teachers, parole officers, or the clergy, among others, and you should have a current address and phone number for each. It is a good idea to notify your references in advance that you will be listing them. This prepares them for the possibility that they will be contacted and asked to say or write a few words in your support.

Interviewing for a Job

The Job Interview
The job interview is probably the single most important step to getting a job. If you make a good impression during the interview, you may get the job — even if you don’t have all the qualifications. On the other hand, if you make a bad impression, chances are you will not be offered the position, no matter how good your qualifications.

During the interview, the employer tries to determine how well you are qualified to fulfill the requirements of the job. At the same time, the interview allows you the opportunity to assess whether or not the job is right for you, and to demonstrate how your skills or qualifications can be a positive asset to the employer.

Preparing for the Job Interview
The following pointers can be of help to you in preparing for the interview:

- Know Your Qualifications
- Learn About the Company
- Bring the Materials You’ll Need
- Go Alone to the Interview. Arrive Early. Be Courteous and Patient
- Dress Right

KNOW YOUR QUALIFICATIONS
Be sure that you can explain briefly and clearly what your qualifications are for the job, and how your past experience or training is applicable to your fulfilling the requirements of the position.

Be able to talk, if asked, about what you see as your major strengths and weaknesses. Avoid personal factors that have no relevance to performing the job in question. When discussing a weakness, show not only that you are aware of the problem, but the measures you have taken to help solve it. For example, “I used to find it difficult, being a mother, to get to work on time. So now, what I’ve done is to arrange with my daughter’s babysitter for me to drop my daughter off twenty minutes earlier on my way to work. I am also now in the habit of waking up and leaving my house earlier to make up for the frequent delays on my subway line."

Be prepared for any tests you might have to take, such as a typing test, for which you may wish to practice.

LEARN ABOUT THE COMPANY
It is very helpful for you to learn something about the company and the job for which you are applying — before the interview. This way you will be better able to explain why you want to work for the particular company, and what it is about the particular job that attracted you. It also shows the employer how interested you are in the position and that you have taken the initiative to do some research. Some information you may wish to learn is: what does the company manufacture, or what services does the employer offer? How long has the company been in business? How well is the company doing? How many employees work there? For help in finding this type of information, start by visiting the public library. A librarian can help you access the company’s website, if they have one, or search for newspaper articles published about the company. Also, many large companies publish annual reports, which are available online and through the mail for no charge. And, of course, don’t forget to bring with you the name of the person who will be interviewing you, and his or her title. If you are not sure of the pronunciation of the interviewer’s or company’s name, learn it in advance.

GO ALONE TO THE INTERVIEW. ARRIVE EARLY.
BE COURTEOUS AND PATIENT
Never bring friends or relatives with you to an interview. Employers are interested in you alone and what you have to offer.

Arrive at an interview five or ten minutes early. To avoid being late, plan out your route the night before. If you are taking public transportation, you may want to call the Transit Authority at 718.330.1234 for information on the best route to take, or for schedules.

When you arrive, tell the receptionist who you are, and whom you are waiting to see. Be polite at all times. Sit quietly and try not to get involved in any lengthy exchanges with either the receptionist or others who may be waiting.

Don’t get angry or annoyed if you are not called in for the interview at the exact time agreed upon. The interviewer might have been delayed at a meeting, or an unexpected piece of business may have come up. Use the time to review and compose your thoughts. This will be your first test of patience and good manners.

Note: It is impossible to tell how long an interview will take, so be sure not to arrange for two on the same day in such a way that you may be late for the second.
When you go for an interview, it is always best to dress appropriately. This is very important in helping you make a good impression. No loud makeup or flashy jewelry. No skintight jeans or slacks, or party dresses. Make sure your hair is clean and combed, your fingernails clean, your shoes shined, and your clothes well pressed.

One helpful piece of advice is to think about what the typical way to dress would be if you were to receive the job for which you are applying. Then, appear at the interview dressed one step “higher,” or more conservatively, than that. For example, a nice pair of slacks, shirt, and sweater would be appropriate dress for a male interviewing for a service station position – where jeans and a shirt would be the typical daily attire. For men, a tie and jacket, or for women, a skirt or dress pants and blouse, are appropriate attire for most office position interviews.

The Do’s & Don’ts of Job Interviewing
- Be Respectful
- Be Relaxed. Listen Attentively
- Be Clear, Complete, and Brief in What You Say
- Be Positive in Your Approach
- Avoid the Negative
- Ending the Interview and Follow-up

BE RESPECTFUL
When you meet the interviewer, smile and be pleasant. For a handshake, it makes no difference who extends his or her hand first. Show the interviewer proper respect. Call him or her by Mr., Mrs., or Ms., and don’t try to make small talk. Don’t chew gum or smoke cigarettes, even if they are offered. Don’t stare at the clock or your watch. Let the employer control the interview and do most of the talking. Never start an argument with the interviewer, even if he or she seems excessively aggressive in his or her approach. Always remain polite and friendly, but businesslike. Don’t be afraid to smile.

BE RELAXED. LISTEN ATTENTIVELY
During the interview, try to be relaxed and listen carefully to what the interviewer has to say. If you are nervous (and it’s perfectly normal to be nervous during an interview!), refrain from fidgeting in your seat or playing with objects in your hands or on the desk. Body language counts. Sit straight and look the interviewer in the eyes during the conversation. Look interested and alert. And, of course, never go “high” to an interview.

BE CLEAR, COMPLETE, AND BRIEF IN WHAT YOU SAY
Speak clearly and distinctly. No street language. Don’t answer with just “yes” or “no”; rather, give full information about yourself. Think before answering and be brief in your responses.

BE POSITIVE IN YOUR APPROACH
It is important that you stress your qualifications during the interview. Don’t exaggerate, however, or try to bluff. Let the interviewer know why you think you would be good for the position, and how your past training and work experience will help you to get ahead on the job. Appear confident but never arrogant. If the interviewer fails to ask you something you feel is important, fill in the gap. If asked to tell about yourself generally, mention only those things which pertain to the job for which you are applying. Use what you have learned about the company to good advantage.

AVOID THE NEGATIVE
Keep all personal problems to yourself. Don’t talk about your home or financial problems. The interviewer is only interested in finding a dependable and qualified person to fill the position. He or she is not concerned about your need for money. Emphasize what you can do, not what you can’t. Don’t dwell on your limitations. Don’t apologize for lack of education or experience. There are many skills and talents you have developed which you can discuss in an appropriate way — if you learn how.

If you’ve been fired from a job, or stayed with jobs for only short periods of time, be prepared to explain. If you were fired, admit the mistakes you made, but show how you have learned from them. Never speak negatively about your former employers. If you stayed on jobs for only short periods of time, perhaps you quit to go back to school, or to look for a better-paying job with more responsibilities.
If you quit school, don’t give as a reason, “I didn’t like school.” It is much better to say, if accurate, “I quit school because I needed to get a job and earn money to support my family.” Interviewers are interested in hiring employees who are eager to upgrade themselves. Mention any classes or training programs you have attended since leaving school, or any that you may have planned for the near future.

ENDING THE INTERVIEW AND FOLLOW-UP
Ask any questions you may have about the job toward the end of the interview. Usually it is not a good idea to ask about such details as pay, lunch hours, or benefits unless the interviewer brings them up, or it is established that you are a strong contender for the job. If you are asked to discuss salary expectations, be prepared, and be realistic.

In most instances, the decision whether or not to hire you will not happen at the interview. If no indication is given when you can expect to hear from the firm, ask when you can call to learn the decision.

If it seems clear that you won’t be getting the job, seek the employer’s advice about other jobs with the firm which may come up.

At the end of the interview, always indicated by the interviewer, thank the employer for his or her time, give a firm handshake, and leave.

Special Considerations:
Telling the Truth About Your Conviction(s) When Applying for a Job

Counselors who work with inmates advise telling the truth about your conviction(s) when applying for a job. In this way, you will be more convincing as a person to a prospective employer, and not have to live in fear of being found out. Remember, employers have the legal right to inquire about past convictions.

In making your decision, consider the following:

If You Tell the Truth About Your Conviction(s) While Job Hunting:
You may be discriminated against in being hired, but there are advantages:

- You may be able to challenge an employer’s decision by filing a discrimination claim.
- You will be more self-confident in talking about yourself, and more likely to project a positive self-image, as someone who may have had problems in the past, but has now reached self-understanding and is ready for responsibility.
- You will not have to worry about getting entangled in a net of lies.
- You will be more relaxed on the job, without having to worry about the employer learning of your record and firing you for having been dishonest.

If You Hide the Truth About Your Conviction(s) While Job Hunting:
You may, in some cases, avoid being discriminated against as an formerly incarcerated person, but there are disadvantages:

- You will constantly need to worry about being found out and, most probably, fired for being dishonest.

Fingerprinting (sometimes not done until after the applicant is actually hired), a badly planned visit by a parole officer, or a call by a vengeful “friend” or family member may blow your cover at any time — as well as any long-range plans you may have requiring steady employment, such as meeting loan payments, paying off a house mortgage, etc.

- You may, where statements on applications are made under oath, or you are applying for certain government jobs, leave yourself open to the risk of criminal prosecution.
- A person who provides you with a phony reference (for example on your work record) may be legally liable and can be sued if you were to commit another crime.

If you tell the truth, the law and the State are essentially on your side. However, once you lie, you have effectively given up rights protecting you from discrimination or awarding you damages in the event of being discriminated against. Having given your employer a valid pretext for firing you (dishonesty, supplying false information, etc.), you will no longer have the law in your favor.

For excellent advice on completing job applications as a formerly incarcerated person, see the National H.I.R.E. Network's website: www.hirenetwork.org/employment_apps.html

Special Considerations:
How to Avoid Being Discriminated Against When Looking for Work

Know Your Rights as an Ex-Inmate
It is important, when looking for work, that you know your rights as a person who has been incarcerated. There are laws that are specifically designed to protect you from discrimination. For example, you cannot be discriminated against because of arrests. Employers can only ask you legally about convictions. However, if you answer, you must be honest if your arrests did lead to convictions.

“Have you ever been arrested?” is an illegal question. You might be asked, and must answer the question, “Have you ever been convicted of a crime?”

Still, convictions cannot be held against you in applying for jobs, unless:

- They are related to the job for which you are applying. You may, for example, with a record of armed robbery, not be eligible for a job as a bank teller, but you may be eligible at the same time to work for the bank as a computer operator.
- You pose a threat to people or property because of your conviction. Here, considerations may focus on how many years ago you committed the crime, how old you were, and/or what rehabilitation you have been involved in since.

Note: After revealing you are a person who has been incarcerated when applying for a job, and not being hired, you are legally entitled to a written explanation from the employer, within 30 days of your request, as to why you are not qualified or were not hired. Formerly incarcerated people are the only group in New York State that have this right.

Restore Your Rights
Apply, as soon as you are eligible, for a Certificate of Relief from Disabilities, or a Certificate of Good Conduct, (see page 191). These documents are an presumption of rehabilitation, and when you have them, the burden of proof is now on the employer to demonstrate that you would be a risk to people or property in being hired, or that your conviction is directly related to the job for which you are applying.

Clean Up Your Rap Sheet
Review your rap sheet (official arrest record), credit report, and Office of Court Administration report and make certain that it does not list any information that is incomplete or inaccurate (see pages 193-195). Arrests that have not led to conviction, for example, or youthful offender adjudications can be officially sealed from your record. Sometimes, also, a single arrest or conviction is listed many times. Assume that every employer will have access to your rap sheet, and that many will not know how to interpret it correctly.
Get a Copy of the Job Application in Advance
When applying for a job, it may be important for you to examine a copy, in advance, of the job application. You can usually do this by sending ahead, to the employer or hiring office, a friend or relative who can pretend to be interested in the job and bring you back a copy of the application. Once the form is in your hands, you can examine it, collect the necessary information, and plan how you will respond to the various questions.

At the Job Interview, Be Prepared to “Sell” Yourself as a Person Who Has Undergone Rehabilitative Change
You may be asked by a prospective employer to talk about your past record. Be prepared. Take a positive approach. Show the ways you have changed since your last conviction. Have you participated in or helped run a prison pre-release program? Have you been involved in a prison or post-release alcohol or drug rehabilitation program, or spent time on work release? Mention the problem you feel contributed to your being sent to prison — and ways you have since confronted the problem and overcome it. For example, “I had a serious drug problem five years ago, and found I had to commit robberies in order to support my habit. In prison, however, I joined an effective therapy group composed of former addicts and learned to understand the underlying causes of my addiction. After release, I’ve spent 18 months in a drug-free residential program and now am fully confident that drug use is no longer a problem for me.”

WARNING: Do not dwell needlessly on your past. If not asked details about your crime and conviction, don’t offer them. You are at the interview to persuade a prospective employer that you are suited for the job in question, not to apologize for past behavior or titillate his or her curiosity with stories of prison or criminal activity.

Select Carefully Those References You Wish to Use on Your Resume and Job Application
In choosing references for your resume and job application, select those individuals who can testify to your present-day character in the most positive light. Have on file letters from counselors, ministers, parole officers, or others that tell of the meaningful ways you have changed.

If you find in job hunting that you have been discriminated against because of your past record, call the Legal Action Center at 212.243.1313, and they can advise you on your rights and how to proceed accordingly.

Special Considerations: Dealing with Alcoholism and Drug Abuse in Your Past
If you have a history of drug or alcohol abuse, be aware:

- It is illegal for an employer to ask you whether or not you are or have ever been an alcoholic or drug addict. An employer can only ask if you have any current alcohol or drug problems which would prevent you from doing the job.
- It is illegal for an employer to discriminate against you as an ex-addict or ex-alcoholic (or, in certain instances, as a current abuser of alcohol or drugs). If you have been refused employment and believe it was owing to your having a history of drug or alcohol addiction, and/or to your being in an alcohol- or drug-treatment program, including methadone, contact:

The New York State Division of Human Rights at 718.741.8400, or the Legal Action Center at 212.243.1313.

Do not lie about your drug- or alcohol-addiction background. To begin, there are several ways an employer can discover your addiction problem. A careful check into your background, a drug conviction, or a medical exam (often required as part of the hiring process) would easily uncover the truth, and you would then, in all probability, be fired for having been dishonest. Also, if you withhold the truth and are later found out and fired, you are left with no legal means to challenge what might have been an illegal dismissal. Misrepresentation on a job application is considered a legitimate reason for not hiring an applicant or dismissing an employee once hired. At the same time, it should be noted that federal confidentiality laws prohibit most drug- or alcohol-treatment programs from revealing any information about your treatment without your consent.

Many ex-alcoholics and ex-addicts have criminal histories and poor work records that can be directly related to their addictions. This may serve, strangely enough, to their advantage. Consider: no employer would be eager to hire a person who has three serious problems in his or her past — a spotty work record, a history of addiction, and a criminal record. Now, let us suppose that a job applicant can argue persuasively that (1) his or her poor work record and criminal activity were directly attributable to his or her addiction, and (2) he or she has, through a drug program or counseling, overcome the addiction and the psychological causes underlying it. The three problems have now been reduced to one — addiction, and the applicant has a better chance of convincing the employer that the past is finished, and he or she is now ready to take on the responsibilities of a job.

After the Interview
Being Offered a Job

When deciding whether or not to accept a job offer, or if you need to decide between two or more jobs, you may wish to take into consideration the following factors:

Job Potential
Ask yourself whether the job will offer you some challenge. Is the job dead-end, or will you be given the opportunity to work your way up to positions of more responsibility and higher pay?

It is good, of course, if given the chance, to avoid dead-end jobs — that is, jobs that offer no opportunities for future promotion or job advancement. There are times, however, in our lives when such jobs can serve useful ends. They do help pay the bills, give us work experience, and can hold us over until a better job opportunity presents itself. The important thing in accepting such a job is to realize that it is only temporary. It is a way of surviving and keeping out of trouble, financially or otherwise, until we get that college degree, or finish that evening computer training program, or hear of a better opening. Try never to lose sight of your long-range career goals, or to stop working toward them, when you find yourself “stuck” at a boring job that seems to be leading nowhere.

Salary
Salary, of course, is a very important factor in considering a job offer. Find out, for example, whether you will be receiving a fixed salary each pay period, or whether your salary is to be dependent on commissions or tips. Also, find out if there will be opportunities for earning extra cash on the job, say, by working overtime.

In choosing between two jobs, a person will not always decide to take the one offering the higher salary. Important considerations, other than salary alone, may include better working conditions or fringe benefits, more opportunities for training or job advancement, and job challenge.

Fringe Benefits
Fringe benefits are benefits you receive from an employer in addition to your cash wages. They may include the following: medical insurance; paid sick leave; paid holidays and vacation; a profit-sharing plan; uniforms and special equipment needed on the job; or tuition assistance to continue your schooling.

Benefits are like cash in that they pay for things, such as doctors’ bills, which otherwise would have to come out of your own pocket. It is important, then, to find out what fringe benefits are offered at the job you are considering.

It may also be important for you to know whether or not the job you are considering is covered by unemployment insurance or worker’s compensation laws.

Other factors worth your consideration are:

- Transportation time and costs to and from the job
- Working conditions, such as noise levels, lighting, dust
- Safety factors, such as risks of injury
- Social environment. Does the workplace seem pleasant? How regimented is it? Are the coworkers friendly?

Helpful Hints in Adjusting to a New Job

To adjust to a new job, a worker often has to develop a new set of work habits. The most obvious are being prompt in getting to work each day, expending the necessary amount of concentration and energy to getting one’s work done satisfactorily, and learning to relate well with one’s coworkers and supervisor.

The longer you’ve been away from the outside work world, or the less experience you’ve had in “playing it straight,” the more discipline and patience all of this is going to require. Responsibility, after all, is not something you were encouraged to develop while in prison, where most decisions, both large and small, were probably made for you. So don’t expect that starting a new job after your release will necessarily be easy. Just know that you can succeed (millions of others have), and that it will require time. The following hints may be of help to you in adjusting to a new job:

Be Both Dependable and Responsible
Don’t appear late for work or be absent without having a good reason. If you are going to be late, or can’t make it to work, call in. If you offer to do a task, or are asked to do one, make sure it gets done. Don’t promise to do more than you can reasonably handle.

Be Patient
Don’t expect too much of yourself when you first begin a new job. There is a lot to be learned — even in simple jobs, much more than meets the eye. You may be nervous or scared the first week or two. This is not unusual. Just remember, your employer is as anxious as you are for you to succeed.

Learn to Follow Directions
There are usually valid reasons why you are told to perform tasks the way that you are. Your success as a worker will be judged to a very large extent on your ability to listen and to do as you are told. If you need to understand something better, don’t be afraid to ask questions.

Get Along Well with Others
Performing your job assignment is only one aspect of job adjustment. Equally important, in the eyes of the employer, is your ability to get along with your co-workers and/or the public you serve. Control your temper. If a problem occurs at work, see your supervisor or shop steward and talk it out.

Learn to Take Criticism
It is easy for anyone to become hurt or to feel defensive when his or her work is being criticized. Learn not to take criticism personally. When accepted wisely, criticism is an important step to learning.

Leave Personal Problems at Home
Work often offers you the opportunity to socialize with coworkers and, indeed, socializing is an important feature of the total work experience. Still, it is important to remember that your main reason for being at work is to perform your job. Don’t let personal problems interfere with work. We all know how hard it is to have to put up with a coworker who arrives at the job everyday frustrated and angry because of a personal situation at home. Likewise, it is unfair to take lots of time rapping with a coworker about your personal affairs when it may well end up jeopardizing both your jobs.

Leaving a Job

Three common ways of leaving a job are:
• Quitting
• Getting laid off
• Getting fired

If you decide to quit your present job, it is almost always advisable to secure another job first. Here are two good reasons:
(a) we are living in a time of high unemployment, when job opportunities in most fields are scarce, and
(b) employers generally prefer choosing new job applicants from the ranks of the already employed, not the unemployed.

If you quit a job, be sure to give your current employer at least two weeks’ notice. He or she will be more likely to give you a good recommendation for your next job.

When you are thinking about quitting a job, or have just been laid off or fired from one, investigate the following:
• Is your job covered by unemployment insurance? If so, will you be eligible to receive unemployment insurance benefits?
• If you were laid off or fired, do you have any recourse? Can you appeal the decision to anyone in the personnel department or union?
• If you were laid off or fired, is there any severance pay that you can collect?
• What will happen when you leave the job in terms of your pension, your health insurance coverage, and your unused vacation and sick time?

Being Unemployed

If, after working at a job, you suddenly find yourself unemployed through no fault of your own, you may be eligible to receive unemployment insurance benefits. Your former job will have to have been covered by unemployment insurance (most jobs are), and, if eligible to receive benefits, you must declare yourself ready, willing, and able to work if a new, appropriate employment opportunity is found.

For recorded information on unemployment insurance, call 888.209.8124 (Spanish also spoken). You will be asked by the local office to begin by bringing in your Social Security number and one or two other pieces of identification. (A pay stub from your former job would also be helpful.) If you are eligible for benefits, there is a two- or three-week processing period, after which you will receive cash benefits (an amount proportionate to the salary you received and the amount of time you worked) for at least 26 weeks.

While unemployed, you may also be eligible to receive other types of benefits. These can include food stamps or Medicaid (see the chapter on Financial Assistance), or union benefits, if you were a dues-paying member of a union where you last worked. Being unemployed, you may also find yourself eligible for special attention in programs designed to help the unemployed find work or further their education and training.

APPENDIX

The following passages are excerpts from the Offender Re-Entry Guide,* from Offender Employment Services (formerly Corrections Clearinghouse), a project of the Washington State Employment Security Department. The suggestions from the Guide, reprinted here, may be applied to filling out application forms and writing resumes.

Disclosing a Felony Conviction

It is particularly important for offenders to be truthful in filling out applications. However, the truth must be told in a way for the offender to get screened-in and invited to a face-to-face interview.

Question

“Have you ever been convicted of a felony?” Yes No

If yes, it is recommended that the offender fill out the question as follows:

Have you ever been convicted of a felony? X Yes No

If yes, please explain: Will explain at interview. I can be bonded.

Below are some compelling reasons to answer the question in this way.

• It allows you to be honest, yet protects your privacy by controlling who knows about the specific conviction.
• Stating that the felony is not job related and that the applicant is bondable may help calm the employer’s fears and perhaps even pique the employer’s curiosity enough to call you in for an interview.
• Many Community Supervision Officers will tell an employer whether you have a felony or not.
• If an employer is going to find out, it is better to hear it from you.
• You control the flow of information — how it’s worded, how it’s presented.
• Once hired, you don’t have to be constantly looking over your shoulder, afraid that someone will find out.

• Most employers do background checks.
• In the interview, you can talk about how productive you were in prison.

Below is a list of other options for answering this question and probable consequences.

Check “YES” and write the conviction.
The candidate would likely be screened out and would lose any privacy because anyone in the office who saw the application would know about the conviction.

Leave the question blank and/or put N/A.
The application would appear incomplete and it would appear that the applicant is hiding something. When disclosing the felony at the interview, it would be awkward to explain why the questions are not filled in truthfully.

Check “NO” and lie.
This appears to be the easiest route for many offenders and may help you get a job for the short term, but the longer-term consequences include:

• Not being hired because the lie was found out.
• Being fired as soon as the background check comes back.
• Carrying around emotional baggage wondering when you will be found out.
• Reinforcing stereotypes.
• Prosecution — especially if you applied for a federal job.

Most employers do background checks before employees are promoted. So if an offender lied on the application, stayed with the company for a few years, became eligible for promotion, and the lie was exposed, the offender could:

• Lose a good job.
• Lose a good reference.
• Lose financial stability.
• Lose self-esteem.

Question:
What should I write if the question about conviction asks me to “explain”? Always write “will explain at interview.” This will keep everyone who may view your application from knowing your personal business.

Question:
How do I cover time in prison on the “Work Experience” portion of the application? List only 2 or 3 of the jobs that may be in line with your future employment goals. If you did any work during your incarceration (i.e., janitor, cook, clerk, and/or firefighter) submit the jobs in which you gained significant hands-on experience. Describe jobs that reflect skills gained, abilities developed, and accomplishments earned.

Example: If you worked both in the kitchen and as a janitor while incarcerated, you would indicate both jobs for your incarceration period and list only the year for dates of employment even though you may have moved from facility to facility and from job to job.

Question:
How do I complete the “business name”?
Use the abbreviated name of jail or correctional facility.

Example: If you worked as a janitor, cook, painter, etc., you worked for the abbreviation of the Jail or Correctional Facility.
Chelan County Regional Justice Center=Chelan Co. RJC; Washington Corrections Center=Washington CC.

Question:
How about completing the “salary” portion of Job Experience?
You should complete wage or salary by stating “stipend” on your application.

Example: Salary Stipend hourly N/A. See the example that follows. At the time of your interview you will be prepared to discuss your incarceration.
Question:
What about completing the “address” portion of Job History? Do not use P.O. Boxes. Use only the city and state as the address, or only the street address of the institution. The reason is that some people associate “P.O. Boxes” with prison in certain towns.

Question:
How to complete the “reason for leaving” portion of Work Experience? Correct responses can be “Relocated,” “Contract ended,” “Transferred,” or “Pursued other opportunities.”

What follows is an example of a Work Experience response. Please note the reason for completing the “Work Experience” portion this way is to get your application past whoever may be screening applications for interviews. It is vital that your “Work Experience” is complete, yet, don’t advertise your incarceration. That information is only between you and the interviewer, not anyone who may see your application.

Example:    WORK EXPERIENCE SECTION
Name: Twin River CC or County RJC
Address: Monroe, Washington
Supervisor: N/A
Dates: From June 1, 1988 to June 30, 1989
Position: Cook
Rate of Pay: Stipend per N/A Reason for Leaving: Relocated
